SSF Council Approves Senior Center

By JACK BIK

An audience composed largely of senior citizens departed in good spirits from Monday night's election-eve session of the South San Francisco City Council.

The reason:

The council voted, 3-1, to lease as a senior citizens' center for three years the former Bank of America building on Grand and Linden Avenues — the city's major downtown corner.

The council also voted, 5-0, to apply for $378,000 from the Metropolitan Transportation Commission to start a municipal bus system. The sum is expected to enable the city to buy seven buses.

The proposal to lease the former bank building was not on the agenda. It was brought up at the end of the meeting by real estate man Joseph Haggerty of Westborough Realty.

He said the bank had been holding the building off the market since the old Magnolia Center was shut down — but that with growing inquiries and council delays, it would now start negotiations with other potential lessees.

A Grand Avenue merchant, in particular, was interested in the building, he said.

City Mgr. Ed Alario and Acting Recreation Director Dick Milkovich reported that another possible site, the nearby Salvation Army store also on Grand, would be available soon. It contains 5,500 square feet, would rent for some $1,000 a year, required $5,000 to meet the building code and $12,500 to $15,000 to add kitchen, bathrooms, partitions and other facilities.

The former bank building, 8,100 square feet at $1,660 a month, would come to about the same cost per square foot — 20 cents.

Meanwhile, the two reported, a meeting between the owner of Sciandri Hardware, senior citizens and city staff, was planned for Wednesday.

"I talked to several merchants," Councilman Frank Mammini reported. "Most of them were not even aware that there were objections."

He added that the other reason for the delay, growing doubt by the senior citizens — was dispelled by a second vote, in which the city-sponsored group voted — 49-2 — with two "not sure" — to move into the bank.

"If we might lose the building," Mammini said, "let's quit procrastinating and take a vote now."

Councilman Terry Mirri protested that a meeting with Sciandri and other merchants already was set.

"We should be fair with our merchants," Borba said. "I believe in fair play. I don't believe in pressure tactics by Mr. Haggerty."

Borba said he was abstaining from the vote because "we're not being fair to the issue." Mirri announced he was voting "no."

"I'm sure if we called the Bank of America in the morning, and asked them to hold the property off the market for a few more days, they would do so," Mirri said.

"I'm voting yes," Ahern declared. "We can go on talking till the senior citizens have all gone."

"If that's your attitude, you should have had ade-

Despite MTC Decision

DC Parking Plan Continues

The Metropolitan Transportation Commission's (MTC) approval of federal funding for additional parking spaces at the Bay Area Rapid Transit Station in Daly City will not affect the city's current plans to secure a 2½-acre parking site near the station, according to a City Hall spokesman. The spokesman said the Council has authorized the city staff to take all necessary steps to obtain the Walter Prehn property, about a block west of the BART station, on an annual lease for the sum of $1,200 monthly.

The city must first obtain permits from San Francisco before reaching final agreement with Prehn on his lot. Although the bulk of the site is in Daly City, access roads are in San Francisco.

Last week, MTC gave its blessings to expenditure of some $3.5 million in federal monies with the proviso that Daly City put up matching funds in the amount of $280,000 for the BART garage.

The city has had the funds set aside since it first undertook the project to build a multi-level parking facility at the BART station more than two years ago.

For one reason or another the funding was shifted from one federal program to another. Initially monies were earmarked for Daly City under the Federal Freeway Fringe Parking Act.

Various transportation agencies gave Daly City's parking garage — designed to almost double parking to 2400 spaces — top priority.

However, each time the federal funds dried up before actual construction could start, City Manager David Rowe explained earlier.

But the MTC approval appeared to be the final step in the long-awaited, and much-needed parking garage.

While the eventual construction of the garage will ease the present congestion around the BART station, it will, for a time, disrupt present parking patterns.

For this reason, Daly City is going ahead with its plans for obtaining the Prehn property.

It is expected the property will have 226 parking slots within easy walking distance of the BART station.

There will be no lighting at the park, which will probably be open only during the normal BART operating hours — five days a week — for the time being.

A minimal daily charge of 40 cents will be levied to help defray expenses of the parking lot, a City Hall spokesman said.

Daly City's share of the garage monies came from gas tax funds.

City government officials feel the city's contribution to the garage will allow them to have a say in how the parking lot is operated and also share in any revenues relized.

Meanwhile, final draft plans for the multi-level parking garage are being reviewed by the government, it was learned.

That Unsung Hero

By FRANK LaPIERRE

The garbage man has been the butt of every lousy joke intlicted on humanity for the past uptynine years.

Wisecracks such as: "The job pays $25 a week and all you can eat," are commonplace to a garbage collector, or "scavenger" as he is called in the Bay Area.

How often have you heard the one about the garbage man who only needed two pallbearers at his funeral because that's all the handles there are on a garbage can?

And yet this fellow who crawls out of bed every morning at 3 a.m., regardless of the weather, this unsung hero of modern times who smiles though his back is breaking, this guy who is constantly accused of unnecessarily rattling the metal cans, is a dedicated professional.

I found this out one chilly morning last week as I tagged along with a three-man team from the Daly City Scavenger Company.

While the life of a scavenger will probably never make the "Great Stories of America" best-seller list (even Jonathan Livingston Seagull refused to be a scavenger), his life is nonetheless an interesting one.

And there is no denying that his job serves all humanity and that it is absolutely necessary in our society — more so in this so-

Correction Of Anders Fire Picture

In The Post edition of Feb. 27, 1974, on Page 1, The Post published a picture of fire damage at the home of William P. Anders, 62 Oceanside Drive, Daly City. The caption under the picture stated, "The chief (referring to Battalion Chief Mel Hanson) said occupant William P. Anders was pouring gasoline into his car and spilled some on the floor. The fumes were ignited by a nearby water heater. Anders suffered second degree burns on his hands and legs. He was treated at Letterman General Hospital at the Presidio and released."

This caption was incorrect in that William P. Anders was not pouring gasoline into his car and did not suffer the burns referred to in the picture caption. Mr. Anders' son, Michael Anders, 18, was burned and sent to Letterman General Hospital.

The story is corrected accordingly and The Post extends its regrets to Mr. Anders and his family.

Gusty Winds Rip N. County

Gusty winds played havoc in the North County Thursday night.

A bucket of fried chicken was nearly dumped all over the sidewalk in the Mission Street area of Daly City; several persons were stuck in an elevator in San Bruno; and shingles were torn from the roofs of two hilltop homes in Pacifica.

In Daly City the "bucket" of chicken weighing several hundred pounds swayed atop a tall mast at the Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant before firemen, using a ladder boom, were able to secure it.

Daly City firemen also were called out Thursday night to help secure a 70-foot pine tree that threatened to topple on homes in the Westlake Estates section of the city. The tree was finally lowered by a large tow truck and cable winch into an area where it could cause no damage.

And in San Bruno fire officials reported a power outage stranded several persons in an elevator in the new postal facility at the Bayhill complex. Firemen freed the trapped riders and reported there were no injuries.

Most reports in San Bruno centered around downed trees and power poles. Some traffic signals and signs were twisted by the winds and one report stated "due to storm, traffic lights are out all over the city."

In Pacifica on Essex Way the John W. Henderson family was forced to evacuate their home after high winds lifted a corner of their roof off, scattering shingles throughout the neighborhood, according to city fire officials. Firemen covered the roof with heavy plastic.

On Spruce Court in Pacifica winds ripped away a 10-by-10-foot corner of a roof of the home of Victor Zertuche. The gusty winds whisked the roof portion some 60 to 70 feet splintering two-by-fours, one of which smashed through the window of a nearby home, officials said.

Pacifica firemen said they received over 40 calls Thursday night mostly reporting live wires down.

At about 7 p.m. the Coast Highway was closed for over a half hour when a 12,000-watt line blew down over the road.

Selection of Jury Resumed

Jury selection resumed Tuesday in Redwood City for three men accused of robbing a South San Francisco tavern and then allegedly trading gunshots with Daly City police who apprehended them following a 100-mile-per hour car chase.

Before jury selection began late Monday, San Mateo County Superior Court Judge Frank Piombo denied defendant Paul G. Arnold's motion for co-counsel status.

Other defendants are Homer Hayes, 49, and Carroll M. Leard, 52. Arnold is 47.

$171,000 in Other Projects Approved

SSF To Buy Police Cars

South San Francisco city councilmen approved expenditures totaling more than $171,109 as they acted on a half-dozen city projects Monday night.

They threw out a $52,286 bid, however, for 13 new police cars. The bid was part of a move to convert the city's big car fleet to intermediate size to save fuel.

A local auto dealer had offered to sell 13 Plymouth Satellites, for $4,022 apiece. Although all local auto dealers were contacted, only one bid had been received, according to City Manager Ed Alario.

Councilmen voted, instead, to buy the cars in conjunction with the California Highway Patrol at an estimated $3,500 apiece—for an estimated $7,800 saving. The city then will convert them to propane, it was explained.

Councilmen awarded a contract to S&Q Construction of Linden Avenue in South San Francisco, for $59,231, to build the city's long-awaited Communications Transmitter Building, atop Sign Hill. The new ultra high frequency transmitter is expected to eliminate numerous dead spots in present police car transmission. It will be the first step in the city's new communications division, which will furnish one-phone number dispatching of fire, police, street, ambulance and other emergency vehicles.

The project has been delayed for nearly a year, according to city officials, by various foul-ups. One problem was that the original specifications, drawn up by the Wilsey & Ham engineering firm, had to be revised because the specifications included brand names, according to Administrative Assistant Mike Wilson.

Repairs to heating systems and replacement of windows—totaling approximately $51,000 — were authorized for the Grand Avenue Library and the Police Station.

Alario explained that $22,000 was needed to install heating and air conditioning in the library. It had been planned to perform the project several years from now, but the boiler failed and needed to be replaced for $3,600.

As for the police station, semeral of the window frames are already broken and constitute a hazard to employes, Alario said. Here too, the heating system "is gone."

Council [illegible] ied an $11,680 contract for spot repairs on Upper Colma Creek to B. Fontana. This project had originally been tabbed at $80,000, but Street Supt. Hugo Stoppoloni and Public Services Direntor Frank Addiego decided that confining the work to fewer areas, at the lower price, would take care of the immediate problem.

This part of Colma Creek is located between Mission Road and El Camino Real. Its lining has been showing signs of deterioration.

Party Brawl Trial Date Set for June

A story of fisticuffs that erupted at a Christmas party held at a plush South San Francisco restaurant may be aired at a week-long jury trial beginning June 19.

Municipal Judge James O. Miller set that date for the joint trial of contractor Battista Anthony Fontana and of Richard Elmo Haskins, who is the son of Arthur "Buzz" Haskins, prominent earthmoving contractor and host of the party.

Some of the prominent civic leaders, judges, councilmen and businessmen who were guests at the party may be called upon to testify at the trial.

The two men appeared in Northern District Court Thursday for a preliminary hearing on charges of assault and battery, and interfering with an officer. The district attorney's office told Judge Miller that the charges had been reduced to misdemean-

Beard's Wife 'Ousted' From Brisbane Post?

Charges, counter-charges and denials of wrongdoing in city government are again rocking the bayside community of Brisbane.

The latest episode involves the leaving of Mrs. Joan Beard, wife of ousted Brisbane Police Chief Billy E Beard, from her job as a finance clerk with the city.

City Manager Walter Bednar told The Post Mrs. Beard was suspended effective Monday morning "for allegedly making false entries in city records."

Bednar went on to say that the case "also implicates or involves ex-police chief Beard."

But he would not spell out what these "false entries" were or when they were made.

Nor would he reveal how the former police chief, whose appeal for re-instatement to his job comes before the City Council in 13 days, was involved in the issue.

Mrs. Joan Beard, contacted by this newspaper labeled Bednar's charges false.

She said she had resigned "due to the extreme pressure (on the job) since my husband was dismissed as police chief on Jan. 9, 1974.

"I feel it to be in the best interest of my health and family that I tender my resignation as finance clerk with the City of Brisbane effective immediately," Mrs. Beard wrote Bednar.

The story of events leading up to the leaving of Mrs. Beard from her City Hall job is substantially different from Bednar's.

Bednar said he became suspicious of "certain matters" two weeks ago while checking on another matter. He could not find certain records, he said.

After holding a series of consultations with Bank of America officials, Bednar called in Mrs. Beard Friday "to discuss the matter with her and give her time to think about this."

San Bruno attorney George Corey, representing the Beards in their fight with City Hall, said the story Bednar relates "is substantially different from the story as I understand it to be."

Corey said he talked to Mrs. Beard about mounting pressure being directed at her by unnamed Brisbane officials on both Saturday and again on Sunday.

At 9 a.m. Monday, Mrs. Beard went to City Manager Bednar's office, asked to use his typewriter and wrote out her resignation.

"In no way, shape or form did he charge me with making false entries or those other things," Mrs. Beard said.

However, Bednar said to prove his contention of false entries he has been authorized to hire the auditing firm of Lester Witte & Company of San Francisco for $1,200.

He intends to check all finance records for 1973 and up to now, "and we may go back even further, as far as I know."

Bednar also said he had informed the San Mateo County District Attorney's Office of the matter and had turned over local investigation of the case to acting Brisbane Police Chief Bud Martini.

In releasing the story to news media Monday, Bednar asked that it be published "in today's paper."

Asked why it was necessary to rush the story into print, Bednar replied "I want the people of this community to understand what's going on."

Did this insistence that the article be published Monday have any connection with the council election, Bednar was asked?

"Could be," was the reply.

St. Clair Challenged For Supervisor Seat

Charging that the incumbent "is taking the people of San Mateo County for granted," school teacher John M. Ward, of San Mateo, took out nomination papers Monday to challenge Robert St. Clair for the latter's seat on the Board of Supervisors in the June 4 primary election.

Ward, 33, a social studies teacher at Crestmoor High School, in San Bruno, charges that the Second Supervisorial District incumbent, who is seeking a third term, "has never run on his record as a member of the board . . . he was returned by default in 1970."

Ward's announcement means that both St. Clair and incumbent Gerald F. Day, seeking re-election from the Third Supervisorial District, will have competition in the forthcoming election.

Day filed his nomination papers Monday with County Clerk-Recorder Marvin Church. Day, 46, who was appointed to the Board of Supervisors July 1, 1969, to succeed the late T. Louis Chess, won election to a four-year term in the June, 1970, primary election, defeating John J. Murray, San Mateo city councilman, who, this year, was a signer of Day's nomination papers.

Day will be opposed in his re-election bid by Edward Bacciocco, Jr., of Woodside, a political scientist, who filed his nomination papers last week.

St. Clair, who announced his intention to seek re-election several months ago, has not yet filed his nomination papers.

In his campaign statement, Ward called the Board of Supervisors "on the whole, invisible, inaccessible and unaccountable to the general public," and singled out St. Clair as the "least responsive to the average voter . . . a part-time supervisor."

Ward is proposing that at least one-half of the board meetings should be held in the evenings so citizens can become "active participants and observers . . ."

In the race for two positions on the San Mateo Union High School District Board of Trustees, a sixth candidate has joined the competition.

E. Milton King, of 893 Constitution Drive, Foster City, obtained nomination papers Monday.

Another candidate, Ruth Steiner, returned her nomination papers Monday. Two other candidates, Gary V. Bell and Robert L. Rhea, returned their papers last month.

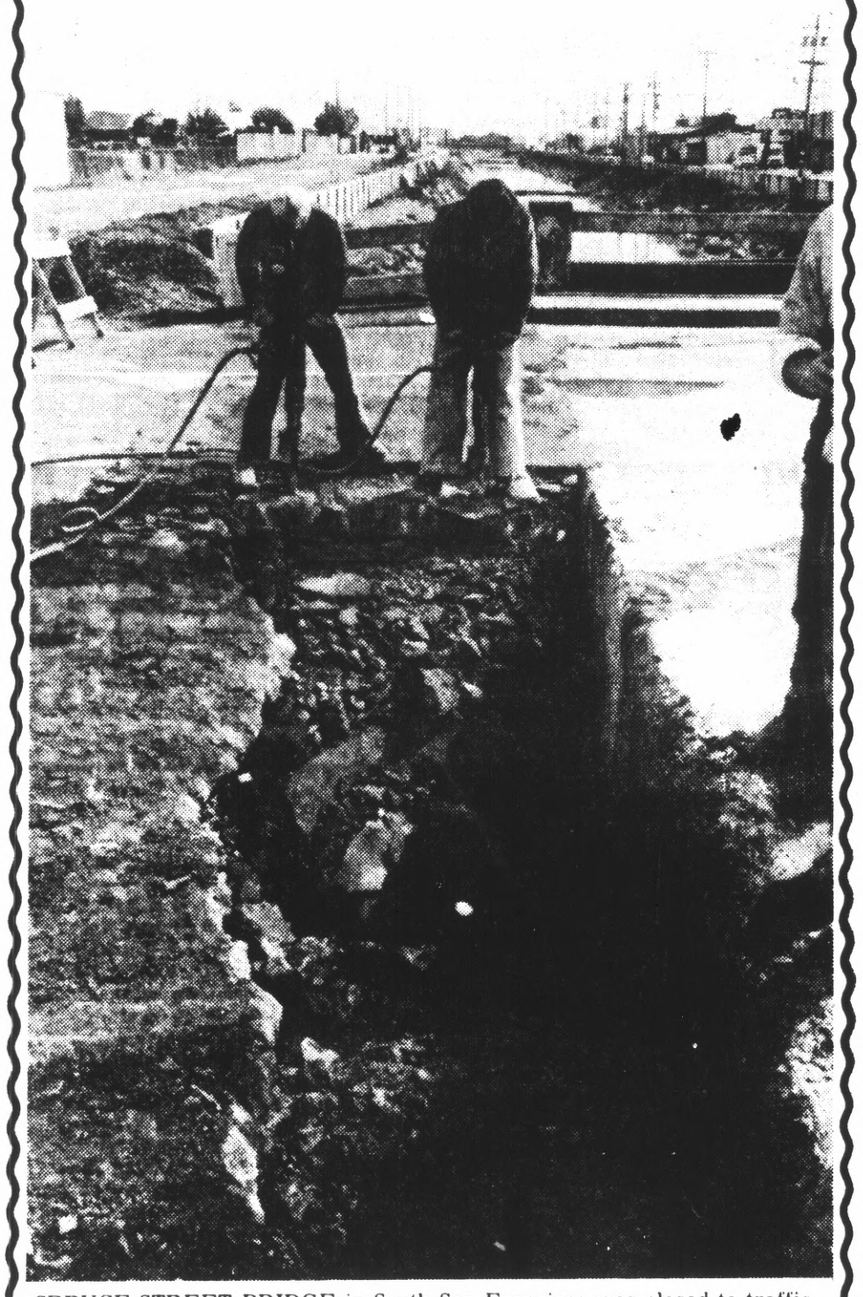
Also obtaining nomination papers Monday were Herbert Rhodes, of East Palo Alto, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for the 12th Congressional District, and William B. Black, also of East Palo Alto, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for the 21st District Assembly post.

SSF Worker Found Dead

A construction supervisor for the Guy F. Atkinson Company in South San Francisco died about noon Monday after apparently hanging himself with a leather belt, Coroners officials said.

Authorities said the body of William Husemann, 45, was found hanging from pipes in a basement equipment room at the 10 West Orange, South San Francisco, address.

Rough Road Ahead



SPRUCE STREET BRIDGE in South San Francisco was closed to traffic Saturday after heavy rains and traffic punched a hole some three feet in diameter in the eastbound lane. The bridge crosses Colma Creek which is now under a flood control modification project. No one was hurt and the bridge was expected to be reopened with a "minimum of delay," a city spokesman said. quate facilities built 10 years ago." Mirri snapped. Mammini and Mayor Warren Steinkamp voted "yes."

Mammini expressed the greatest skepticism over the bus proposal.

Mammini shot a barrage of questions at Erik Wheaton, the city manager administrative assistant/transportation. Wheaton said the grant would be for purchase of buses and that the city could expect to receive the grant for five straight years.

"You always have to look a gift horse in the mouth," Mammini admonished. "I don't believe it. I don't believe that the state is going to give each city $378,000 every year. Come on! . . . I'm not objecting to a transportation system. I just don't want us to get hooked."

"If we can get hooked by the state for five years," Ahern retorted, "I'd love it."

"Let's take the $6½ million you put into Oyster Point and use it for transportation," Councilman William Borba proposed.

The Oyster Point money, in the form of a loan from a special state harbor fund, would not be available for buses, Mammini said.

The councilmen, going along with the proposal, first approved a resolution supporting — and expressed their intention of cooperating with adjacent cities in an area-wide approach to public transportation, then adopted a resolution filing an application for money from the Metropolitan Transportation Commission.

Programs For Drunks Outlined

Two new programs for alcoholics and abusers of booze not deemed as alcoholics were outlined Tuesday by Donald Light, coordinator of the newly established San Mateo County Alcoholism Advisory Board.

Light said funding is available for each of the programs. He presently is seeing agencies to submit proposals towards implementing them. The two new programs, plus a listing of funding for on-going ones, recently were considered by the new board.

The first program seeks an additional recovery house for alcoholics in either the far northern or far southern portion of the county. Such a house now operates in San Mateo.

Trial

ors, and thus the preliminary hearing was canceled.

The two men pleaded innocent on all charges. Dan Modena, Haskins' attorney, requested a jury trial and estimated that five to seven days would be needed. The prosecutor told the judge he did not see how the trial could last more than three days. Modena replied that "many witnesses will be called."

Judge Miller also set June 10 for a disposition hearing, at which an attempt will be made to settle the case before the trial.

According to the district attorney's office, Haskins is now charged with four counts of resisting and obstructing various police officers, plus assault and battery upon Ron Sullivan, a former South San Francisco police officer, retired for disability and now working as an investigator for the public defender's office.

Fontana is charged with three counts of interfering with a police officer. He and Haskins are free on their own recognizance.

DC Scavengers

called affluent society we live in today.

There is one thing a person quickly finds out regarding these "sanitary engineers."

No scavenger worth his salt ever apologizes for the career he has chosen. On the contrary, he is proud of the services he contributes to the community.

Until a months-long strike hit the Daly City Scavenger Company last year most people took the garbageman for granted.

After watching these men at work during a typical run through the Southern Hills seciton of the city on a cold and blustery morning I, personally, shall never take them for granted again.

Ramon Ramirez, Fidencio Morales and Miguel Navarro gave a rundown on how their day started, ended, and what happened in between.

Thursday morning, while the world was deciding whether it was going to awaken, the men reported for work at the company's corporation yard on Annie Street shortly after 3:30 a.m.

After a quick cup of hot coffee the trio was an the way.

It was the usual wintry morning in Daly City — rain, wind and an occasional patch of fog. It was one of those days made especially for ducks, and little else.

But the garbage had to be collected or the company would receive an avalanche of telephone calls from irate citizens.

The men carry large aluminum back cans. They arrive in a neighborhood and start making their collections. Each house can is dumped into the larger collection can, which, in turn, is carried to the truck and deposited.

These "back cans" hold between 100 and 150 pounds of refuse when full.

The first can of the day was dumped into the back of the large red compactor truck at 4:14 a.m. Two hours later the truck left for its first run to the Mussel Rock dumpsite.

After backing their truck up to the edge of the pit site and dumping its unsavory load into the hole, the crew stopped for its first coffee break of the day.

I noticed something not unusual about these men — they kidded each other about work, their bosses, and their private lives.

Frankly, it had never occurred to me that garbagemen had "private lives."

They were always shadowy figures toting huge cans around on their backs, not someone you'd walk up to, shake hands with and greet as a long-lost buddy.

Certainly, I never thought of them wearing suits and taking wife and kids out to a picnic.

I learned different.

These men do have friends, many friends. They do have fun. Lots of fun. And they actually like what they are doing, although it entails a certain amount of danger.

Cut hands from people who put broken bottles into plastic bags (against the city ordinance except as liners for trash containers), back injuries from hauling too heavy a load or picking up a full can wrong are common.

In 1956, Al Sereni, scavenger president and one of six partners owning the Daly City company, fell off a "step truck" and fractured three vertebrae in his back.

Lupe Huerta, a native of Guadalejara, Mexico, has worked for the company since 1961 and never suffered a major injury.

However, John Rattaro, one of the owners, has been a scavenger for 38 years "and I can still carry more garbage — can for can — than any woman!"

There are about 20,000 homes from which garbage is collected in Daly City.

Each man carries an average of six tons of garbage a day. This amounts to three truck loads daily during a five-day work week.

They are paid about $42 plus fringe benefits for their day's work.

I wouldn't do it for ten times that much.

It isn't the stigma attached to being a garbageman.

It's having to get out of bed at 3 a.m.

SSF Planners Debate Medical Center Plan

A proposed $1,250,000 medical facility may not be built if the South San Francisco Planning Commission and the owners of the site cannot agree on a property access, according to Paul Markling, architect.

The commission reacted negatively to further access from Westborough Boulevard and extended a decision pending further information.

The alternate access route, Zoning Administrator William Costanzo said, "was approved by the commission at the time the land was divided, and would come off of Burnham Court," a new street to be put in with development of the site.

"Staff's opposition has to do with the danger with traffic just being gorged onto Westborough Boulevard," Costanzo said. "With this kind of ingress, you could promote illegal U-turns onto Olympic."

Markling contends that "the doctors paid for Westborough access and should have it. It is necessary for the convenience of the people. Without it, patients would have to circle around the shopping center parking lot.

"They (commissioners) will not be saving a thing," Markling said. "All they will be doing is making the people drive another five blocks to get exactly where they were before. They will still be going up Westborough."

He also noted that an alternate access will not alleviate the traffic on Westborough. "The number of cars is almost nothing as far as hazard.

"The building will draw people from San Bruno and downtown South San Francisco," he said. "They will either be using Westborough or Gellert Boulevard, which is in the process of being extended to Serramonte.

"If someone can prove to me there is a hazard, then we won't have the access we want," Markling said.

He added "there might be a compromise, but it will probably be one the doctors won't want."

The planning staff has not completed its investigation yet. According to Costanzo, "the commission's decision will be based on what they feel is good practice.

"If there is a lot of public opposition, there probably won't be a Westborough access," he said.

City Staff, Utilities Involved

Pacifica Undergrounding Considered

Ugly power poles, a common sight throughout most areas, may become obsolete in Pacifica, according to Les Clark, director of Community Development.

City staff members and representatives of Pacific Gas and Electric, Pacific Telphone and Telegraph and Cable Television comprise the Underground Utilities Committee, recently formed to study the possibilities of burying aerial utility wires.

A proposed master plan for the project was presented before the Pacifica Planning Commission last week. The purpose was "to attempt to identify areas we feel are the most obvious and unattractive," Clark said.

"We will try to get something done every year and amend the plan to include other areas as each section of the city is converted, he said.

Following studies now under way, three priority areas will be chosen. "We will get prices on them, in terms of public money, and take the one we can afford to the City Council for approval," Clark said.

The bill for this expensive and slow conversion process will be covered by two sources: the utility companies and the home owners.

"Everything in the public right-of-way will be paid for with public money," Clark said.

According to Norm Rubel, director of public works, "The State Public Utilities Commission has set up a program whereby the utilities companies contribute so much money a year to be used for undergrounding.

"We receive $55,000 a year, and by January, 1975, our fund will total $222,000," he said.

The remaining costs will be the responsibility of the home owners. It was estimated that the conversion could range from $100 to $200 per house, but these figures are still only speculations.

Clark explained, "The conversion will be in the way the power lines are received in the homes.

"The wires presently come in from the top of the house. They will have to come in from the bottom, run down the side of the house, into the ground and out to the property line and the street," he said.

The wires will run from there to a concrete power box to be placed beneath the street. Rubel said home owners will have to pay for trenching to get the new service to the home.

"He will have to backfill the trench after the wires have been placed, and replace the dug-up lawn," Rubel said.

"The power company will pay for the wire and do the connecting," he said.

1 Quits Welfare Board; Appointment Rescinded

One member of the San Mateo County Board of Health and Welfare is resigning because it has been discovered he is not a county resident, and another member has been informed that her recent appointment to the board is being rescinded because she is a county employe.

Franklin J. Agardy, executive vice-president of URS Research in San Mateo, appointed to the board last Oct. 16 by the Board of Supervisors, is tendering his resignation to Board Chairwoman Jean Fassler after being informed by Health and Welfare Director Dr. George Pickett that Agardy's position on the board is in violation of a County Charter provision requiring members to be legal residents of the county.

Agardy is a resident of Los Altos and was so at the time of his appointment to fill the sanitary engineer position on the Board of Health and Welfare.

Mrs. Beatrice D. Jackson, of Daly City, appointed as the public member to the board Jan. 29, has been informed by Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald, who nominated her for the position, that the appointment will be rescinded because it is the policy of the Board of Supervisors not to name county employes to boards and commissions because of a possible conflict of interest.

Mrs. Jackson, who has attended only one meeting of the board since her appointment, is employed as a kitchen worker at Hillcrest Juvenile Home in Belmont.

Pickett, who recommended Agardy for the appointment, said he was unaware that Agardy was not a county resident when he suggested the appointment. The health and welfare director said the question of residency never came up when Agardy was interviewed by Pickett, Dr. Joseph LaDou, chairman of the Board of Health and Welfare, and by Dr. James Bodie, director of the Health Division of the Department of Health and Welfare.

"I knew he had an office here (in San Mateo), but I never looked at his address (which Pickett's secretary has on file in her office)."

Pickett said he informed Agardy, who was unaware of the county charter requirement, of the situation after being informed that The Post had learned that Agardy was not a county resident.

Dep. Dist. Atty. James Foley, informed by The Post of the situation, commented that there would be a "valid basis for seeking his removal" from the board.

Furthermore, Foley said, any matter by the Board of Health and Welfare which acts in an advisory capacity only, which was decided by one vote could be questioned. Such a situation has not arisen since Agardy joined the board.

Fitzgerald said when he nominated Mrs. Jackson he knew that she was a county employe, but did not inform fellow board members when the appointment was discussed in an executive session.

He was aware that the board was reluctant to appoint county employes to county boards, but "I didn't know it was cut and dried," Fitzgerald said today. "It's not a written policy."

Summer School Program Slated

A continuous program of specialized instruction for elementary school children with learning disabilities was approved recently by the Board of Trustees of the South San Francisco Unified School District.

And, according to Chairman Leo Padreddii, the summer school session will attempt to alleviate the learning problems of emotionally handicapped pupils, and of children with severe expressive language disorders.

The program includes a five-week therapeutic session for kindergarten children with speech and language problems. It will also provide a work experience program for high school students and classes for school-aged mothers, Padreddii said.

Although details of the programs have not been formulated, basic outline was presented at the meeting.

Elementary school sessions will begin on June 24, and end on July 26. The 96 emotionally handicapped students will attend class for 3½ hours a day, from 8:30 a.m. to 11:50 a.m.

Twelve students will participate in the language disorders section of the program. Classes will be conducted at Buri Buri Elementary School, and bus service will be provided.

Speech therapists will choose 48 Kindergarten children for placement in the Speech and Language Development Program. The morning will be divided into two sessions with 24 students attending each.

In addition, Summer School Work Experience Program will be operated in conjunction with the Economic Opportunity Commission, the Neighborhood Youth Corps and the South San Francisco Information and Referral Center.

Padreddii said, two full-time work experience coordinators and a secretary will aid the 300 students in the program.

The program will run from June 24, to August 15. Students will be employed through funds from the three sponsor groups and through private employers, he said.

The SAM program for school-aged mothers will offer classroom instruction for 20 girls at Baden High School. It was noted that the cost of the program to the district will be slight, as state funding will provide most of the needed funds.

Judge Orders Welfare Cheaters to Repay

San Mateo County judges have ordered a San Bruno woman and two other welfare cheaters to make restitution.

The biggest case involves a San Bruno woman who failed to report that she married in 1969, resulting in overpayment of welfare in the amount of $4,698 to her from September of 1969 to April of last year.

Dist. Atty. Insp. Guillermo H. Tovar said the woman, Vaimagalo Lei Heimuli, 30, married James Heimuli in Reno in 1969. He is a ramp supervisor for Aircraft Service International at San Francisco International Airport.

Superior Court Judge Gerald E. Ragan also placed Mrs. Heimuli on five years probation.

In another case, Ragan ordered Byron Peppars, 32, of South San Francisco, father of four, to perform 200 hours of public service work and make restitution of $2,560 to the welfare department.

Court records stated that Peppars failed to disclose that he had been receiving social security benefits for his four minor children for several months, resulting in the overpayment.

In another case, Ragan ordered Mrs. Laurence Lee Martin, 54, of Daly City, to repay $2,254 to the welfare department because she failed to report a profit of $4,000 on the sale of her house. She and Peppars each were placed on three years probation too.

M. P. BROWN SCHOOL, Colma, celebrated Founders' Day, Feb. 14, and Honorary Service and Life Membership awards were presented. The two recipients of the Honorary Service Awards were Mrs. Jessie Tong (second from right), who is a volunteer currently working in the school office, and Oscar Niles (right), the school custodian. The Honorary Life Membership Pins went to Mrs. Phyllis Ramage (second from left), a sixth grade teacher, and Mrs. Shirley Czeikowitz, a school volunteer currently heading the volunteer library staff.

Skyline To Dedicate New Center

It will be an all-campus open house series of events and activities March 10 between 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. when Skyline College officially dedicates its new Campus Center Building.

Faculty, administration, and students will be rolling out the welcome carpet to the citizens of North San Mateo County and surrounding communities to show off the new $2 million structure that afternoon.

Not since the opening of the college in September, 1969 has the college had any major additions to its original settings. Therefore, many divisions and departments located on the campus as well as the facilities in the new structure will be open for public visitation and viewing.

Included in the activities for the day will be the new campus center with its complete cafeteria, modern media audio-visual center, photography-journalism facility, seminar and large classroom areas, student government offices and one complete floor library with more than 27,000 volumes.

Other campus programs slated for must seeing by the public include a social science department presentation; English Division reading lab operation; practice session and presentations by the Skyline College jazz band; art exhibits; piano lab, cosmetology lab, and theater scene shop openings; gymnasium and physical education facilities on display; aeronautics department operations shown; and life science activities to be shown; and business-typing programs and labs to be seen. These are just a few of the highlights in the dedication day events.

Refreshments will be served.

Backs Bend That Tots May Play

The Children's Community Nursery School, 90 Northridge, Daly City, received a gift of labor from six Fernando Rivera Jr. High School students Feb. 27.

Rich Pender, Rodriego Salangsang, Len Cheichi, Hector Gannon, Louis Tinsley and Gavin Lau, all of Daly City, and students of Fernando Rivera Jr. High School, contributed several hours of their time in clearing the backyard of the nursery school.

Using rakes and shovels they joined some nursery mothers in working on a project that will allow the school to expand their services to the community. Presently, the school is licensed for only 15 children per day. This number will soon be increased to almost twice that number.

Later in the day June Salangsang, Joseph Salangsang, Jack Schori, Kathy Mayle, Raymond Mayle, Mari Pender and some nursery school fathers joined the workers and the project was completed.

The nursery school operates five days a week, Monday through Friday, from 9:30 a.m. to noon. Children can attend from two to five days.

The program allows children to develop socially, mentally, and physically in a well-supervised atmosphere.

Gen Attorney To Meet With Pacifica Youth

Students at the Ortega Junior High School will engage in role-playing activities and discuss the objects of the STOP program with State Attorney General Evelle J. Younger today at 10:30 at the school, 2000 Terra Nova.

"Our experience in working with youth in crime prevention programs, such as the one in Pacifica, convinces us that the most effective prevention can be done by young people themselves, relating to and working with younger children. We believe that peer influence is most effective," Younger said.

In addition to the demonstration, the attorney general will present certificates of commendation to the junior high school participants.

SSF Holds Two Youths In Fatality

Two 19-year-old South San Franciscans were arrested on vehicular manslaughter charges in the death of a 61-year-old San Francisco man in a collision police said resulted from the two youths engaging in a "speed contest."

Dead on arrival at Mary's Help Hospital, Daly City, shortly after the 11 p.m. accident in the 1300 block of El Camino Real was Herbert LeRoy Butler.

Booked were Steven James Elkin, of 647 Ash, and Mark John Pruett, of 1240 Birch St., who also was charged with felony drunk driving, police said.

According to authorities, Elkin and Pruett allegedly were "engaged in a speed contest" northbound on El Camino Real at speeds police estimated at 60 miles an hour.

Police said Pruett's vehicle apparently went out of control knocking the Elkin car into the southbound lane with the end result that both cars, according to police, struck the oncoming Butler vehicle.

New Gasoline Rules Voted

These are the regulations which went into effect Monday, March 4, in San Mateo County, when the mandatory gasoline supply plan, approved Thursday by the Board of Supervisors, begins:

1. At the retail level, gasoline may be dispensed into vehicles with a license plate whose last (or only) digit is an odd number (1, 3, 5, 7, 9) only on odd numbered days of the month. Environmental license plates that contain letters only will be equivalent to the digit 1.

2. At the retail level, gasoline may be dispensed into vehicles with a license plate whose last (or only) digit is an even number (0, 2, 4, 6, 8) only on even numbered days of the month.

3. For any calendar month in which there are 31 days, sales may be made on the 31st day without regard to the registration plates of the motor vehicle.

4. Gasoline shall not be sold to any vehicle that has more than one-half tankful of gasoline. When requested by the gasoline attendant, the customer shall permit inspection of the fuel gauge with the ignition key in the "on" position.

5. When dispensing gasoline to the general public, gasoline retailers shall not refuse to sell gasoline to anyone, on appropriate odd or even days, except to refuse to sell gasoline to vehicles with more than one-half a tankful of fuel.

6. Each service station shall clearly indicate its gasoline supply and service situation by a sign or flag, easily visible from off the premises. If the flag system is used, the following will apply:

Green Flag — Gasoline available to general public (appropriate days).

Yellow Flag — Gasoline available to emergency vehicles only.

Red Flag — Out of gasoline and/or closed.

7. Individual retailers are the best judges of the business days and hours that satisfy their customers' needs; therefore, no general hours or days of operation are specified. However, each gasoline retailer shall clearly post his anticipated minimum business days and hours. Retailers in a common marketing area will be encouraged to work out staggered hours and days of operation.

8. Each gasoline retailer shall manage his monthly full allocation so that it will last through the month. This may be done by adjustment of business hours and business days of the week, or by establishing maximum or minimum purchase volumes, or both. However, readjustments should be no more frequent than absolutely necessary.

9. The following vehicles are exempt from the provisions of these orders:

Emergency vehicles as defined in the State Vehicle Code.

Buses regularly used to transport passengers.

Vehicles used for commercial purposes in the judgment of the gasoline retailer.

Vehicles with out-of-state license plates are exempt from the alternate day ban on gasoline purchases but not from the one-half tank purchase provision.

Operators of exempt vehicles are urged to purchase gasoline only on appropriate days whenever possible.

10. Storage of gasoline in separate containers in the trunk of automobiles or in homes or garages is an extremely dangerous practice. At the retail level, gasoline may be dispensed into separate containers only when necessary in the judgment of the gasoline retailer. Such sales shall be in the smallest practical quantity.

11. Pursuant to the authority of Section 8665 of the Government Code, any violation of these orders or regulations is a misdemeanor and upon conviction, shall be punishable by a fine of not to exceed five hundred dollars ($500) or by imprisonment not to exceed six months or by both such fine and imprisonment.

City Parks 'First To Be Cut

By BOB PETERSON

Ask anyone knowledgable about such things as city budgets and priorities, what's among the first to go when money is low, and chances are they will say the requests of park and recreation.

"It's the first cut and last recognized," is the way San Brunan Polly Sandkulla, recently elected for one year as second vice president of the California Association of Park and Recreation Commissioners and Board Members (CAPRCBM), put it.

Mrs. Sandkulla, presently a member of the County Park and Recreation Commission, began fighting to place park and recreation needs on a higher priority back when she was first appointed a San Bruno city park and recreation commissioner.

"People will be walking to parks, or driving a short distance (because of the energy crunch) and this group (to which she was recently elected) will be more important than ever," said Mrs. Sandkulla.

CAPRCBM is a five-year-old organization affiliated with the California Park and Recreation Society (CPRS), which is the association of the professional people who work in the area of park and recreation.

"This relationship between these two groups is vital," said Mrs. Sandkulla. It is a relationship, she added, which "creates an atmosphere" that allows necessary projects to be completed.

According to Mrs. Sandkulla, in the too recent past the professional park and recreation individual was unable to communicate his legitimate needs effectively to City Council through an unsympathetic Park and Recreation Commission.

This changed with the meeting of the minds between the professional park and recreation person and the more informated (through the association of the two groups) park and recreation commissioner.

"We hope to keep up-to-date on legislation affecting parks and recreation and to hold workshops on how to be an effective commissioner and to promote the importance of parks and recreation to our welfare," said Mrs. Sandkulla.

"California is the state most successful and responsive in promoting the needs of parks and recreation," said the CAPRCBM former membership chairwoman. "We're used as a model by other states. Maybe it's because there are more active lay people involved."

Mrs. Sandkulla, who noted that membership in CAPRCBM increased by 400 last year.

Those Gas Line Blues

Games People Play

STANDING in gas lines is anything but exciting, but for some North County residents innocent forms of entertainment help pass the time. Times-Post reporter Frank LaPierre of Daly City (above) watches a television program on his portable set, while (below) Jerry Clymo (left) and Byron Snyder, both of San Bruno, engage in a game of chess. Serving hot coffee to one motorist is Tere Sarra of the Tender Trap Coffee Shop, San Mateo Avenue, San Bruno.

Distributing Gas To American People

Announcer: Tonight we are pleased to bring you the two thousand, one hundred and twenty-seventh showing of "The Inmates Run The Institution." Our participants are John "Shorty" Fall who leads a consumer revolt, and Hi Principles, chief of the Department of Planning, Deep Thought and Control. Mr. Principles, will you open our program by telling us whether we will have gas rationing?

Hi: Everyone should know by now that we are fully prepared for, and strongly opposed to rationing.

Fall: Are you going to give us more gas about the importance of not having rationing?

Hi: Yes, indeed. Our forefathers never thought of gas rationing. Not one word was said about it during the course of the Constitutional Convention, and the Federalist Papers are silent on the subject.

Fall: They had other problems.

Hi: I must agree to that. But through the time of growth of the nation — and as we expanded across the prairies, the pioneers never thought of it, and would have opposed the idea if they had. We are a free people, and any form of regulation is abhorrent.

Fall: So is the thought of waiting in a gas line for hours. In fact, we have rationing now.

Hi: I deny that.

Fall: Obviously we do. We have a system that distributes what gas we have to the people who have the most time to wait in line. We are, therefore, giving it to the least productive part of our society, and to those who can afford to send someone else to get it.

Hi: That isn't rationing. The present system is set up to give our scarce gasoline to the most ingenious and most clever. It is a perfect example of survival of the fittest at work under trying circumstances. Only the fit will ride.

Fall: Only the idle, and the wealthy. The present plan rations gas unfairly.

Hi: Besides, we are slowly raising the price — soon the crisis, I mean the problem, will go away.

Fall: It seems to me that you propose replacing the present inequitable system with an even worse kind of rationing.

Hi: Your charges are false. Prove your point.

Fall: When gasoline gets to a dollar or more a gallon it will only be available to those who can afford it.

Hi: That will shorten the lines!

Fall: And those with less money will absorb the entire shortfall.

Hi: (excitedly) Yes, yes. It works out perfectly.

Fall: What about the blue collar worker who needs his money for food?

Hi: He should work harder and earn more money.

Fall: Are you suggesting that the wages of American workers are too low?

Hi: Oh no, no. No! I am suggesting that people who want to buy gas in the free marketplace will have to pay for what they get.

Fall: You are running a rationing system now, and appear headed for more rationing as the price rises. The government has ducked the issue, and the ordinary American is paying the price.

Hi: Definitely not. The way our rationing, I mean allocation program, is going is a fine example of cooperative government and home rule at work. The federal government, up to now, has left rationing to the states. The states, in turn, and in increasing numbers are passing the mess. I mean problem, on to the counties, and some alert counties have already passed the buck, I mean responsibility, to the cities. One community is working on a plan to pass the matter even further along — to supervisorial districts. Now this, I say, is government at its best: the problem has been referred to the unit of government closest to the people.

Fall: But no level of government has taken effective action to distribute the burden sensibly or fairly.

Hi: You miss the point. The present situation is a triumph of principle. We have all levels of government refusing to deal with the problem at once — an historic first.

Fall: Maybe what we need is fewer of your theories and a little more common sense.

Hi: This is a great experience for the nation. We are bearing hardship together. They also serve who only sit and wait.

TROUBLE BREWS IN TELEVISION ACADEMY

For some years now there has been much criticism about the number of awards handed out by the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences on "Emmy" night. Last year a total of 212 "Emmys" were presented. It took two nights to do it, and both affairs ran long.

Each year a number of plans are put forward to streamline the awards giving procedures, but none of them have ever satisfied everybody. In fact, there have been occasions when several of the network news operations refused to take part in the awards at all.

This year the Academy, with a new and good leadership, decided to cut back on the awards and to make them more meaningful. At least that is what they thought they were doing, but there is more opposition than ever before. There is a movement afoot in Hollywood to boycott the whole proceedings.

Sixty-one Academy members signed an ad which ran in the trade papers urging those who were unhappy with the setup to attend a meeting held last Wednesday at the CBS Studios in Los Angeles.

Norman Lear, a man who can get involved in a controversy without trying, sounded off and made good sense. "On one hand," Lear said, "you have Mary Tyler Moore competing with Cicely Tyson and Katharine Hepburn and on the other hand you have Mike Connors competing with Jason Robards in 'The Country Girl'."

When it comes to series, Miss Moore should be up against Carol Burnett, Cher Bono, Michael Learned, Lucille Ball, and the other gals who work week in and week out, while Liz Montgomery, Cicely Tyson, Katharine Hepburn, and the others who appear occasionally in specials should compete against each other. It could be that a deserving actress could be almost completely overlooked by the new system.

However, so it seems, the dissenters are in a small minority and it isn't likely that too many people will boycott the affair. If they do they'll probably only take away a little from the affair which is being held in May. Actually there will be two award broadcasts this year. One of the awards will be presented during the afternoon to honor the various daytime shows.

There'll be more about this as the big night comes closer, but the betting at the moment is that it is all a tempest in a teapot. However it could also grow and destroy this year's event.

AS SPRING APPROACHES more and more shows will be getting their notices, and others will be getting orders for a new season. Already "Marcus Welby, M.D." has been renewed for next season by ABC, as "Police Story" has by NBC. NBC also is about ready to order up some more "Dean Martin Comedy Hour" shows. The networks are busily engaged in putting together a schedule for next fall. A few years ago it would habe been announced by now, but don't look for any decisions until mid-April.

THIS WEEK THE latest local ratings became available. It appears that the KPIX news team which made its debut about a month ago isn't getting very good grades. The six o'clock news finds KPIX dropping from an 11 rating for the week of January 16 to an 8 for the first week in February. The noon ratings were a surprise, too. KRON-TV with Terry Lowry, Paul Ryan and Ray Taliaferro, doubled the ratings of KPIX. The KPIX noon news had a 5 rating on January 16 and dropped to a 3 rating for the week of February 6.

KGO-TV dominates the 11 o'clock news. In fact KGO-TV climbed from a 17 in early January to a 21 for February 6. KRON-TV started with a 6 rating on January 16, and climbed to an 8 in February. KPIX did not gain at all, staying at 7.

It will take a couple of months to see how the new KRON-TV and KPIX news teams will do. At the moment it appears that Terry Lowry being added to the noon news was just what was needed.

The FCC has a new chairman, much to the relief of the broadcasters. President Nixon appointed Commissioner Richard Wiley to take over the job vacated by Dean Burch who becomes an aide to the President . . . Karen Valentine has a new show in the works as has David Hartman. Both are "sweating it out" as the networks make up their minds . . . ABC must be delighted about selecting a Liz Montgomery feature for tonight's "Movie of the Week." Liz's "A Case of Rape" set a record by being the highest rated film ever made for television.

Luncheon Plans Set

After their regular ballet lessons under the direction of Diane Roberts, the following members of the Senior Civic Ballet sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department, learned how to make tissue flowers:

Kathy DeBarros, Gayle Rigoni, Michelle Frenkel, Annamarie Brizuela, Karen and Ellen Sakkestad, Kathy Torres, Pam Ruggiero, Marie Abruzzo, Natalie Seitz, Rana Qirreh, Lisa Bianchini, Lorene Gavle, Nannette Vides, Doreen Anzalone, and Dannell Moniz.

Mrs. Robert Brizuela demonstrated how to make these flowers, which will be used as decorations for the annual Fashion Show-Luncheon to be held March 30.

Mrs. Richard Torres, in charge of decorations for the event, has surprises.

Grand National Coming to DC

The 1974 Junior Grand National — a full-scale junior version of the senior Grand National Show held each fall — will bring youngsters from all over California to San Francisco's Cow Palace for 11 days of livestock, horse show and rodeo competition beginning April 5.

The annual exposition and show, first presented in 1946, is sponsored by the State of California and organized by the 1-A District Agricultural Association — official name of the Cow Palace. Timed to coincide with the school spring recess, it is the largest of its kind in the world and the most important participatory event of the year for young people active with livestock and horses.

The purpose is to encourage the development of young people by giving them a chance to participate in a meaningful actvity and win recognition for their efforts.

All entrants are members of 4-H, Future Farmers of America, or other youth development organizations, and both the 4-H and FFA cooperate closely with the Cow Palace in the Junior Grand National's livestock program.

In preparing for the show, the boys and girls spend six hours or more a day caring for their animals and gaining a sense of responsibility that will benefit them in whatever lifetime pursuit they choose. Many decide to make a career of it, and follow in the footsteps of the numerous California livestock leaders who were once Junior Grand National exhibitors themselves.

The Cow Palace is inviting attendance by supervised groups from schools and community organizations throughout the Bay Area. There is no admission charge, and all livestock and horse show competition takes place during the daytime hours.

Requests for further information on the 1974 Junior Grand National, and ticket orders should be addressed to the Cow Palace at P.O. Box 34206, San Francisco, Ca. 94134.

NELL NORTON

Good morning, good cooks.

Meatless meals are welcome in these times of high food prices and especially so during Lent. Recently I made this macaroni dish, and it was well received.

MACARONI CASSEROLE

2 cups cooked macaroni
2 tablespoons chopped pimento
1 tablespoon minced onion
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons melted butter
1 cup dry bread crumbs
2 eggs well beaten
1 cup coarsely grated Cheddar cheese
1½ cups tomato sauce

Grease a 2-quart casserole. In large mixing bowl combine the two cups cooked macaroni, two tablespoons pimento, one tablespoon onion, one-half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons melted butter, one cup dry bread crumbs, two well beaten eggs, one cup grated Cheddar cheese and one and one-half cups tomato sauce. Pour into prepared casserole dish and bake in 350-degree oven for 40 minutes or until firm. Serves 4 generously.

About an hour before you plan on baking the macaroni casserole, you could bake this cake for dessert. The oven then would be hot, and all you have to do is turn it down 50-degrees to accommodate the casserole.

As the name suggests, this is an easy cake to make, using biscuit mix and apples with a touch of sherry to give it pizzazz.

QUICK SHERRY-APPLE CAKE

¼ cup sherry
1 cup peeled and finely diced apple
2 cups biscuit mix
¼ cup sugar
2 beaten eggs
2 tablespoons melted margarine
cup milk

Peel and dice apple very fine. Pour the fourth cup sherry over and let stand while you mix the rest of the cake.

In medium bowl combine the two cups biscuit mix, one-fourth cup sugar. Mix together the two beaten eggs, two tablespoons melted margarine and one-third cup milk. Combine with the apple-sherry mixture and pour into dry ingredients. Beat well.

Turn half the batter into a 9x9x2-inch pan which has been greased and floured. Sprinkle with half the streusel mixture. Top with remaining batter and sprinkle with the rest of topping. Bake at 400-degrees 25 to 30 minutes or until cake tests done. Serve warm or cold, plain or with ice cream.

STREUSEL TOPPING

2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 tablespoon biscuit mix
1 tablespoon butter
⅛ teaspoon cinnamon

Blend together the two tablespoons brown sugar, one tablespoon each biscuit mix and butter and the eighth teaspoon cinnamon. Sprinkle over cake.

Prepare for the Worst

Some Tips for the Gas Guzzlers

By JOHN HORGAN

It is time for men and women to resolve to steel themselves for the challenges to come.

It is time to prepare for the worst even though others might announce ominously that the worst is past.

Care must be taken to ready ourselves for every possible contingency.

Is this a clarion call to man the ideological ramparts or to hit the beaches in some remote and strife-torn land?

No, sir.

It is a word to the wise if you are thinking of getting in line to gas up at your favorite service station some drizzle-shrouded morning.

Motorists in San Mateo County — like their frazzled peers all across this parched land — have already learned that he who arrives at the pump first is apt to have the best shot at some high octane nectar.

The early Torino gets the Exxon as it were.

But slithering quietly out of your humble manse to establish yourself at the beginning of one of those hapless service station lines can be a truly trying experience.

Perhaps the key to a somewhat comfortable sojourn at the station of your choice is what you decide to bring with you to while away the hours before your car is finally permitted to gulp down a little fluid.

What follows is a sort of psychic CARE package for the weary motorist:

● Take along an electric cattle prod to zap belligerent drivers who try to butt into your line.

● Carry with you a tape-recording of Don Rickles' insults which you can use to blast a station attendant who refuses you service because you aren't a preferred customer.

● Prepare a bundle of outraged letters of protest for mailing to petroleum executives. Mention that you want to vote Ralph Nader onto their boards of directors.

● Ready a dart board which can be used by everyone waiting at the station. Make certain that you include an autographed picture of King Faisal in the bullseye.

● Pack a bullet with you which you can bite when the wait really gets bad.

● Carry a six-pack of Rolaids to swallow when your stomach churns up 43 quarts of bile from biting the bullet.

● Memorize license plate numbers of folks parked behind you and then remember how lucky you are to be in front of them.

● Print inscrutable witticisms in Arabic on your fogged-up windows.

● Set up a gas-cap concession at curbside.

● Raffle off unwanted parts of your car and urge others in line to do the same.

● Raffle off unwanted passengers in your car.

● Raffle off King Faisal.

● Figure out ways to make the Exxon tiger an endangered species.

● Blink your headlights on and off in Morse code. Use your imagination. But keep it clean.

If all else fails, however, you could do the ultimate: You could give up gas for Lent.

Buying Gas Is Like Going to the Doctor

Buying gas is like going to your favorite doctor: You have to make an appointment and then wait in line.

The prices are no picnic either.

Some service station dealers won't even post the tariff out on their signs any more.

Either they can't keep up with the increases or they are too embarrassed to advertise.

For the last several days, I've spent a considerable amount of time trying to find a place to purchase gas.

I'm no different than anyone else in that regard.

At one station, I spotted a sedan getting what looked like a fill-up. Making a quick U-turn, I doubled back to this oasis only to be shooed off by a burly attendant.

"Sorry," he barked. "I'm only servicing regular customers now and I don't know you."

A glance at his prices seconded the motion. He wanted 56 cents for regular to accompany his surly attitude. Where's your whip, I wanted to know.

After checking out dozens of other stations along the Mid-Peninsula and being astounded at the length of the lines therein, I decided to try one more dealer as a last gasp.

SIDLING up to his station as inconspicuously as possible, I meandered ever so delicately up to this dapper individual in the manager's outfit and whispered judiciously in his ear: "Hey, pardner, what time do you open tomorrow morning?"

"Eight o'clock," he replied, "but don't tell anyone else. I'm trying to keep the crowd down."

I felt like I was buying dirty pictures from the fellow.

Rising briskly after a troubled sleep, I braced myself for a Saturday assault on the station.

I got to the station none too soon just before 8. There were already a half dozen motorists there ahead of me.

One young man explained that he had gotten there at 6.

"I had some studying to do anyway, so I figured why not head down to the station early," he reasoned.

MEANWHILE, my breath was freezing against the windshield of the car.

People were starting to get nervous. More drivers were arriving until, by 8, the lot was brimming with cars.

The owner was late. As the clock steadily ticked onward toward 8:30, some drivers panicked, peeled rubber and split for hopefully greener pastures.

But, just before 8:30, the man arrived as promised. After a cigarette and cup of coffee inside his office just to titillate the customers a little, the glorious gasoline began to flow.

Gratefully, I watched the stuff filter wildly into my near-empty tank.

Salvation. Hosannah. A man will do a lot for ten gallons of fuel these days.

I figure I spent at least two hours and 1½ gallons of it just searching for a refill.

Pardon me, I have to go out again and start looking for more. There are so few days left until the weekend.

And you can't be too careful.

Local Girls Join WAC Pilot Reserve Program

"Just two weeks of basic training?" That is all the Army Reserve "boot-camp" time required of three WAC's who were recently enlisted and promoted with the 353d Psychological Operations Battalion (PSYOP).

The three WAC's joined the Reserves under a pilot program which allows women with advanced medical and administrative skills to receive accellerated promotions with a minimum active duty time away from their civilian occupations.

The women, Caryl Dodd, 33, of Pacifica, Teresa Haack, 24, of San Bruno and Mrs. Maeve Lynch, 27, of Daly City, completed their basic training at Fort McClellan, Ala. and returned to the 353d PSYOP for additional training and promotions.

Ms. Dodd has a Master of Arts in recreation administration from San Francisco State University and several years experience as an eligibility and supervisor for the San Mateo County Food Stamp program. Her administrative background earned her an advanced promotion to Specialist 5th class just four months after her enlistment.

Ms. Dodd's promotion would normally be earned after approximately three years of Reserve experience.

She will work with the PSYOP's graphics communication company coordinating the company's operations.

Ms. Haack is an IRS accounting specialist and has earned a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Southern California in Slavic Languages. Ms. Haack has been promoted to Specialist 4th class and will work with the 353d PSYOP photographic team receiving photo-journalism and photographic technique training.

Mrs. Lynch, a student at San Francisco State University, has five years of business experience. She was the first woman in the nation to take advantage of the Reserve WAC accellerated promotion program. Mrs. Lynch earned a promotion to Specialist 4th class and will work with the recruiting section coordinating a program to inform other women about the opportunities available to them in the Army Reserve.

Television viewers should be on the look out for familiar faces when KRON TV, Channel 4, begins using The Girl Scout Week station identification slide Sunday.

Mariner Dorice Robinson of the local Mariner Scout Ship 13 will be featured along with Christianne Ulukou of junior troop 476 and Lorelei Morino of Brownie Troop 1818.

Girl Scouting is celebrating its 62nd anniversary and most of the local troops are planning to celebrate the occasion with a special program and a recruitment effort aimed at adult leaders and girls.

One of San Mateo County's leaders with a long record of service to scouting and the community is Mrs. Margaret Damon, the leader of Dorice's Mariner troop.

Mrs. Damon began her volunteer work in scouting 26 years ago when her daughter, Susan, joined a Brownie Troop. Now her daughter assists with the mariner troop and shares her mother's pride in the girls they work with and for in scouting. If you are considering volunteering to help in the Scout program talk to Mrs. Damon, after 26 years she still finds the job challenging and satisfying.

It is interesting to note that, with all the upheavel within the society and the supposed mass "alienation of youth" from established groups, scouting continues to draw young people to its banner and today there are more than 4 million girls and leaders enjoying the program.

MARCH 20 HAS BEEN SELECTED as the date for the Mary's Help Hospital Guild's annual Day at the Races.

Mrs. Mary Lawson is the chairman of the event which is staged to raise money for the guild's pledge to the growth of Mary's Help Hospital.

Tickets are being sold in the hospital gift shop or information about reservations may be obtained by calling Mrs. Lawson at 755-2116.

Tickets are being sold for $8.50 per person, and that amount covers the cost of admission to the Turf Club, buffet luncheon on the terrace and a table for the day. For an additional $1.50 race goers may ride the charter bus which will leave the Westlake Shopping Center at 11 a.m. and returns at 6 p.m.

Guild members, relatives and friends of the hospital are invited to join the fun on March 20.

DOES SEPTEMBER seem a long way off? Well if you are thinking about taking a trip that will cost in excess of $1,200 March seems a good time to begin doing a little planning!

Mrs. Edna Laurel Calhan, director of trips for the Fifty Plus Club of Pacifica, has arranged for a Fall Foliage — American Heritage tour that will leave Pacifica on Sept. 11 and meander about the United States and Canada for 46 days before it concludes.

The trip will leave and go north for Yellowstone and Canada, across to Niagara Falls, on to Maine and Cape Cod, then down the eastern seacoast and home across the plains of the southwest.

Mrs. Elizabeth Funderburg is accepting deposits of $200 per person at this time. The balance of the cost will be due by August 11. For information call Mrs. Funderburg, 355-2184.

MRS. WILLIAM BAGNALL, membership chairman of the Friends of the Library, will be chairman of that group's booth in the annual Serramonte Mall Festival to be held in April.

According to Mrs. Emmett Tierney, president of the Friends of the Library, the booth will feature originally designed and handcrafted book marks.

THE SERRAMONTE HIGH School Jazz Band is still accepting invitations to perform before local groups as a part of the continuing effort on the part of the student body to raise more than $26,000 to send the school's concert band to Hawaii in June for the second annual Hawaiian Festival of Music.

Program chairmen interested in having the group perform are asked to call Jan Gaynor, chairwoman of the music department at Serramonte, 992-9555, extension 19.

MEMBERS OF the Friends Outside Mothers Club are seeking to earn money for family activities by cooking meals for various church and private groups.

The members of the club, wives of men in prison, have been doing luncheons, wedding receptions, teas and church dinners, to make money to send their children to summer camp and provide funds for activities for their children.

If you or your group would like to help with this undertaking by having the Mothers Club prepare a special meal for you or your group please call the Friends Outside Office, 661-6900.

MRS. EMILY POWELL Sumrall, membership chairwoman of the Balboa High School Alumni Association, reports that the alumni group is searching for graduates of Balboa now living in San Mateo County.

The association's spring membership drive is underway and Mrs. Sumrall indicates that she is anxious to involve as many Balboa grads as possible in the program of dinner dances, family picnics, basketball games and race days that the alumni sponsors.

In addition to the social events the unit provides scholarships, an advisory committee for the Balboa Student Association and subsidizes special projects for the school.

If you are interested in the group call 826-8046 or write to the Balboa High School Alumni Association office, 1000 Cayuga St., San Francisco 94112.

Conquistadors In S. California

The Conquistadors Color Guard, The Northern Peninsula's all-girl precision drill unit, swept first place in two state competitions in Southern California Feb. 16-17.

At Placentia High School the Conquistadors scored 75.45 to take the first place trophy among seven Class B color guards from Northern and Southern California Feb. 16.

In the afternoon, competing against the same units at Santa Ana High School, the Northern Peninsula unit won first with a score of 76.55.

The two wins established the Conquistadors as leading contenders for the state Class B title. Earlier the guard had won first place at a San Jose show, after opening the season with two second-place showings at Sacramento.

The guard is part of the Conquistadors Drum and Bugle Corps, based in South San Francisco with members from several Northern Peninsula cities.

It will be performing in a major West Coast Invitational color guard competition at Skyline College March 23, with units from the Northwest and throughout California.

Sponsored by VFW Post 4103 of South San Francisco, the color guard includes:

Kelly Munn, Pacifica, captain; Theresa and Martha Avila, South San Francisco; Julie Bettencourt, South San Francisco; Toni Garcia, South San Francisco; Linda Long, San Bruno; Debbie Ludewig, South San Francisco; Angela Marin, South San Francisco; Melinda Morgan, San Bruno; Kathy Morey, Daly City; Naomi Munekawa, South San Francisco; Sue Samuelson, South San Francisco; Kathy Torcom, South San Francisco and Marlene Vawter, South San Francisco.

New Water Main in SSF

South San Francisco School District officials say the maximum water pressure at Serra Vista School is poor and the equipment requires frequent maintenance.

When it fails, the school is without water, so the board of Trustees Feb. 25 authorized a call for bids to replace the main water service.

Higher water pressure will be available with the development of an apartment complex at King and Junipero Serra Boulevard, trustees were told, with a new main line from that area to the school site.

It also would eliminate the need for a pump pressure system and would improve the fire protection for the school, trustees learned.

Rep. Ryan to Get GOP Foe

A South San Francisco man has obtained nomination papers to file as a Republican Party nominee for the 11th Congressional District in the June 4 primary election.

Brainard G. Mardinger, of 518 Baden Ave., grand secretary of the Young Men's Institute, paid his filing fee and took out the papers Friday at the office of County Clerk-Recorder Marvin Church.

Merdinger is the first Republican to obtain nomination papers. Leo J. Ryan, the Democratic incumbent congressman, filed his nomination papers Friday with Church's office.

Four Serramonte Pupils In Bank Award Progarm

Now in the running for $1,000 cash awards, four graduating seniors from Serramonte High School were named last week to represent their school in Bank of America's 1974 Achievement Awards program, Principal Anthony Trujillo announced.

These students and their study fields are: Rush Manbert, science and mathematics; Ann Gressani, liberal arts; David Kaplan, fine arts; and Constance Thodos, vocational arts.

The four top-rated seniors received personally engraved plaques and now proceed to the next level of competition, a zone event, to be held Mar. 19 in San Bruno. There, they will compete with winning seniors from 12 neighboring high schools before a panel of educators and business and community leaders.

Judging is based on group discussion, scholarship, leadership, promise of future success and service to society. Zone winners advance to the regional finals scheduled for late April and May. Second and third place winners in the zone event in each field will receive $100 and $75 respectively.

At the regional finals, the zone winners will compete for top cash awards of $1,000 in each study field. Second and third place winners will receive $750 and $500 and all participants receive a minimum of $250.

This year — the 27th for the Achievement Awards — Bank of America will present a record-setting $210,000 to competing high school seniors throughout California.

Date Changed

The president of the Westlake Senior Citizens Club, Millie Machens, announced last week that the regular meeting set March 6 has been postponed until March 13 at 10 a.m. at Our Lady of Mercy Hall, 1 Elmwood Drive, Daly City.

Book and the Energy Crisis

"Give me some books to read during the energy crisis.

Last Friday my car was out of gas, cable vision was making lines across my TV screen, the furnace, set at 68, could not dispel the gusts of cold wind that sailed through the house, so I went to bed and tried to read Gibbon's 'Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire.' Save me from such a harrowing fate."

Thus reads a letter that came to my desk. For this patient — whoops — patron, I prescribe a dose of Damon Knight's "100 Years of Science Fiction." It's a book that will so capture your fancy you will think you fell out of the present with all its troubles. The pieces in this anthology, like all good science fiction, postulate a world that is changed in some way from our gasless, heatless, age. To enjoy it just open your imagination and let the authors, one by one, lead you with word magic from your miseries.

But if it's nostalgia you need "Spellbound in Darkness" is the very thing. Here with pictures galore and quotations replete is George C. Pratt's history of the silent film. Revised in 1973, this silver-colored book tells how the silent films attracted 80 million spectators every week and why the total number of people who went to the silent movies during any two-month period exceeded the entire population of the world.

If you missed the classics, now's the time to read them. "Gone With the Wind" has been called America's greatest novel, so great in fact that between 1936 and 1938 it captured the attention of 1,788,000 people and by 1939, when it was filmed, the number of readers had reached 2,153,000.

Today more than 9,500,000 copies have been sold. "Gone With the Wind" has been called the most exciting novel ever written.

DON'T FORGET "Ivanhoe," "Kenilworth," "The Abbott" and the rest of the works of Sir Walter Scott. In them one finds a romantic feeling for a heroic age that differs from our era of swinging realism and deep disillusionment as day differs from night.

Beneath the romance found in Sir Walter Scott's books is a reminder that the world has never grown weary of patriotism, of things that are heroic and of a sense of abounding life in even the most humble people. There is no doubt that he overloaded his novels with dramatic incidents and glamorized history, but he saw nobility in man.

"Sound, sound the clarion, fill the fife!
To all the sensual world proclaim,
One crowded hour of glorious life
Is worth an age without a name."

Our age has been called half classical, half realistic, half meta-physical and always explosive. Science fiction, nostalgia, historical novels, murder mysteries and volumes of popular history lend us rest from its rigors. The library is full of such books. Come and get them.

Mrs. Gregorio Heads Head Start Auxiliary

Mrs. Arlen Gregorio was installed as president of the Head Start Auxiliary at its annual meeting at the Borel Restaurant in San Mateo.

Taking office with Mrs. Gregorio were Mmes. Russell Janney, vice president; Troy Nuckols, secretary; Edward Lewis, executive secretary; and Robert Garnick, treasurer. Members at-large are Helen Austin and Mesdames Robert DuRard, Lewis Weil, B. B. Stern, David Vallerga and Timmie Will.

Carmen Broz, Title 1 Teacher with the Millbrae Schools, spoke. Mrs. Broz has worked with the auxiliary in the selection of children whose special needs qualify them for the Auxiliary program.

The Head Start Auxiliary was formed in 1968 by a group of concerned citizens in the community when a cut in federal funds eliminated one of two local Head Start classes.

Since that time, the Auxiliary has sponsored the 22 children per year in pre-school programs, first at Lawrence Childhood Center in San Mateo and more recently at the Millbrae Nursery School and the San Mateo Parents' Nursery School, both parent cooperatives which are affiliated with the College of San Mateo.

Elig ble children are recommended through appropriate community resources and include 2½ through 5-year-old children who have financial need, language difficulty, or special learning problems.

The Auxiliary is currently winding up its membership drive and making plans for a "Renaissance of the Arts" on June 19, a wine-tasting party with local artists and craftsmen displaying their work and demonstrating their skills.

Persons interested in Head Start can contact Mrs. Lewis Weil, membership chairman.

Cancer Society Fights Smoking Bill

By LIN DAY

The American Cancer Society's California Division last week announced that it will seek defeat of State Sen. Arlen Gregorio's bill to set up school smoking areas.

The society, which admits, "we missed the boat" on an Assembly committee hearing Feb. 12, said it will seek a negative vote on the bill on the Assembly floor.

Asked about this, Gregorio of San Mateo said that the Society had overlooked the major argument for the bill. He said that actually he has generally supported the measures which the Society felt were an argument against the bill, and even co-authored a bill seeking to achieve one of them.

The Society's state president, Dr. Robert J. McKenna of San Marino, commented that his group had planned to testify in opposition to Senate Bill 71 at a hearing of the Assembly Education Committee.

"Unfortunately," McKenna said, "we didn't know the hearing would be scheduled so quickly after the bill got through the Senate, and we missed the boat."

The bill was approved 9-6 Feb. 12 by the committee and now awaits the full Assembly's vote.

Authored by the San Mateo state senator, it would enable high school administrators to set up approved smoking areas for students in school buildings and on school grounds, the Society said.

A Society press release indicated that the measure is backed by school districts which reportedly have found it difficult to prevent students from sneaking smokes in rest rooms and other campus hide-aways.

McKenna noted however that it would eliminate the (under 18) age limitation entirely, permitting pupils of any age to smoke.

"Instead of relaxing the law," he said, "we would prefer to help schools to establish smoking withdrawal programs and clinics for students and teachers who want to break the habit."

"Permissiveness would be interpreted as an endorsement of teen-age smoking by both the schools and the community," McKenna said. "It would defeat the purpose of constructive health education programs."

The Society pointed out that statistics show that smoking is increasing among teen-agers, particularly among girls, jumping in the latter category from 6.2 per cent in 1968 to 11.3 per cent in 1972. Among 18-year-old girls, it increased from 21.3 per cent in 1968 to 24.8 per cent in 1972, the Society said.

It admitted that among 18-year-old boys, it decreased from 35.5 per cent to 32.7 per cent in the same period.

Gregorio said that the Society overlooks the most important argument for the bill which is that the bill does not simply give administrators of high schools the power to provide smoking areas.

"What it does," he said, "is give that decision, one way or the other to the people who really should have it — the locally-elected members of the school boards.

If you believe in local control of government — and I do — I have consistently voted for it — you believe in addressing problems that are immediately local in a way that is appropriate in a local situation and through the elected officials who are most immediately and directly responsible to the electorate in that locality.

"Who are we in Sacramento to say that this is not a solution in Hunter's Point or Alturas or any given area?" Gregorio asked.

"What I do know," he said, "is that every single group that represents people who spend their time in this situation — superintendents, principals, teachers, counselors, juvenile law enforcement and truancy offices and students — especially non-smoking sutdents — have asked for the bill, and support it."

Most schools would undoubtedly not be permitted by their trustees to have smoking areas if this bill went into effect, Gregorio said.

"I don't know why we are afraid of having locally-elected officials deal with this local problem," he said. "I don't think there is a much better way, as a matter of fact, of making the electorate at large, including many parents, aware of the many serious problems we have in our high schools today."

Gregorio said that actually he strongly supports the same measures which the society has used as its rationale for opposing the legislation.

He pointed out that he agrees with such measures as establishing voluntary smoking withdrawal programs and clinics for those wishing to break the habit.

"I am co-author of a measure that would establish a pilot program for working with students at all levels, the earlier the better, in counseling them and educating them about problems of drug use," he said. "That includes smoking."

He noted that smoking is legal in the state for those under 18 except where special prohibitions exist. Selling tobacco to minors is not legal.

Smoking is the leading cause today of high school suspension, he said, at a time when some of our high schools have attendance ratios of as little as 50 percent of enrolled students.

A Medical Controversy

Jogging Bad for the Heart?

(This is the second in a series of articles on jogging. Today, can running strain the heart?)

By DICK DRAPER
Post Sports Writer

See the man. He is out of shape. See the man look at his watch. He is late. See the man run. He is chasing a bus. Run, run, run. See the man wheeze. See the man stumble. See the man gasp.

See the man die.

Immediately the hue, the cry, from some medical men: "Running can damage the heart. It is bad. Cease, desist."

Balderdash? Truth?

Dr. Joan Ullyot of the Institute for Medical Sciences in San Francisco has the facts at hand. She has studied the cardiovascular system and knows what running can do. She's a runner herself.

"There is a doctor in San Francisco who is anti-exercise, "she says." But he is an overweight, sedentary man. Sure, it's always the man who dashes after a bus then dies from a heart attack whom we hear about.

"But there is evidence that a regular program of running helps reduce the incidence of heart attacks and can increase the chances of survival if an attack occurs. In fact, it's been documented that no one who has finished a full length marathon (26 miles plus) has died within six years of heart disease."

Still, some MD's abhor this exercise madness.

In the January issue of Runner's World Magazine, Editor Joe Henderson quotes "Medical Advice" columnist-jogger Dr. George Sheehan: "The medical profession should be learning from us (runners), not threatening and frightening us. In a three-year Health Insurance Plan of New York survey of 110,000 people, physically active men had only one-half the number of heart attacks of the inactive men — and in the most active men only one-eighth the number of deaths."

Pretty conclusive.

"Doctors on both sides argue back and forth," said Dr. Ullyot, "but for myself, I don't think there's much of a real controversy. The way I look at it, the body was meant to be used. If an arm is put in a cast for a length of time it atrophies.

"By not exercising," she pointed out, "it is like putting our heart in a cast."

Dr. Harmon Brown of San Mateo, director of student health services at Cal State-Hayward, believes runners need not carry a tag, "Running can be hazardous to your health." Quite the contrary.

"Proper exercise will give an individual better lung capacity and better heart function than a person who is inactive. But, people 35 and over who have not had regular physicals should have an exercise electrocardiogram taking them up to 85 per cent of the predicted maximum.

"There may be underlying heart disease, so a middle-aged individual who has not gone through proper evaluation may be running a risk.

"I think it's still a little soon," said Dr. Brown, "to answer the long-term question whether exercise can forestall heart attacks in adult males."

Still, Dr. Brown reports the use of exercise in "high risk groups of people who are coronary prone or who have angina suggests a lesser occurrence of heart attacks."

In the August issue of Runner's World, it was stated, "Eight runners from Toronto all former heart attack victims, came (to Boston) to run. Seven of them finished in close to 80-degree weather. The one who dropped out wasn't in distress. He simply felt he hadn't done enough training to go all the way."

Runner's World also quoted Dr. Thomas Bassler of the American Medical Joggers Association on the effects of running on true marathoners. "Those who can complete the 26.2 miles appear to be immune to coronary heart disease (CHD). We have yet to find a marathoner of any age with fatal CHD. There is no evidence that speed, protects, but mileage does."

Doctors taking electrocardiograms of runners have discovered irregularities. Ah ha! Bad news, right? Perhaps, but Dr. Ullyot and others insist these abnormal EKG tracings are indeed "irregular", explaining the so-called "normal" EKG is regular, all right, and probably means the individual is your average the - most - exercise - I - get - is - going - to - the - refrigerator - for - a - beer American.

An education process seems in order. Education of the public . . . AND, education of doctors.

"Right," says Dr. Brown. "Doctors can prescribe exercise like medicine — with the right dose and the right number of repetitions."

Next week: Beginning jogging — how far, how fast.

Transfer Students React to Terra Nova High Lifestyle

By SANDY BRYANT
Campus Correspondent

"It's like being on Room 222 without the cameras!" stated a junior girl who recently made the big move from San Francisco to Pacifica.

This year, so far, 30 students from San Francisco schools have transferred to Terra Nova High School.

Most of the 30 students claim they first enrolled in Terra Nova, they were a little shocked. One junior girl stated that in her last school, Washington High School, she was afraid to walk down the halls if they were empty.

"All the rumors you hear about girls being dragged into bathrooms and knifed scared me to the point that I would not walk down the halls alone. But Terra Nova is different. The people don't walk around with a look of hate on their face. This school has a more relaxed atmosphere."

Most new students from San Francisco find the classes harder but the rules looser.

"At my old school, Everett Junior High," said another, "my classes were so easy, that I flew through them all. At Terra Nova you learn what a high school should be. Sort of a challenge!"

"You can get away with a lot of things here and never get caught, but after you're here for a while it seems sort of dumb," stated a senior boy from Balboa High School.

The rate of San Francisco students now attending Terra Nova has climbed slightly in the last year. Whether it's the beautiful location, the moderately priced homes in Park Pacifica or other considerations which attracted San Francisco families, one never knows.

As a one-time resident of San Francisco for 14 years, my opinion of Terra Nova is quite similar to those of the above students. Terra Nova is quite a change from the city schools; a change for the better.

Riordan Routs Westmoor Rams

By JERRY LITTRELL

Westmoor took a 16-game win streak into the contest but could do little except stare into the chests of the taller, bulkier and more experienced Crusaders as Riordan dominated the boads at both ends to key a 63-47 victory Thursday.

And like a catalyst every good combination needs to perform properly, the littlest man on the court, 5-5 Alton Byrd, was the final ingredient all those other big boys needed to put the game away. Byrd plays with a self-assurance and cockiness that is just right for his function — that being to make things happen.

That's exactly what he did all night. He didn't score a point but set up 15 of the 28 Riordan baskets with blind-side, pinpoint passing that always found an open man for buckets. And, if and when Riordan missed that first shot, up went the mature front line for second, third and fourth tries.

His presence was especially felt in the second half when, after rallying from a 13-point deficit, Westmoor closed to 47-40. Byrd hit center Wayne Miller for four layins and the Rams were quickly out of the rally and the game.

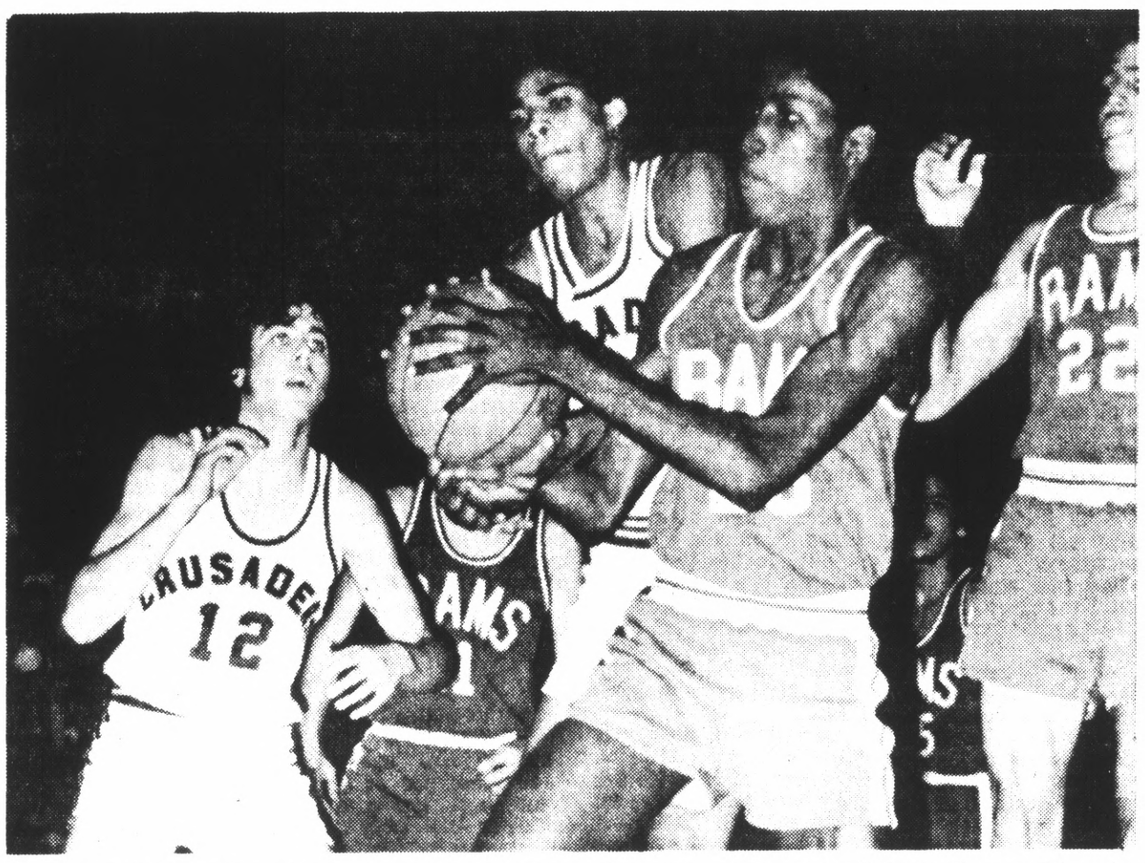
Westmoor's downfall may have come midway through the second period. The normally deadly free throw shooting Rams were within four when they missed three consecutive first shots on the bonus situation.

Converting those shots could have changed the entire complexion of the game the rest of the way, as it would probably have meant at least a tie going into the locker room at half.

Westmoor, North Peninsula League champs, could do little against Riordan forward Elmer Love in the first half, as the 6-6 veteran compiled 18 of his 22 points inside the Ram zone. Westmoor was down by just six at intermission. The end came when Love hit two opening buckets, Riordan added two more for eight straight and the Rams were down by 14 and forced to attempt to play catch-up.

Miller hit 18 of his 24 game-high points in the second half as Westmoor, which was held 20 points below its season scoring average with their poorest shooting night of the year (22 per cent), continually fired up but would have been close only if they awarded one point for rims.

Westmoor (17-6) ..... 9 14 11 12—46
Riordan (22-5) ..... 11 18 18 16—63
Westmoor — Guillory 3 0-1 6, McNeil 3 2-2 8, Pittman 1 0-0 2, Scott 3 4-6 10, Baptista 2 3-4 7, Fritz 2 6-8 10, Fox 1 1-3 3. Totals 15 16-24 46.
Riordan — Love 8 4-5 20, Andreatta 2 0-0 4, Miller 11 2-2 24, Bond 3 0-0 6, Donovan 4 1-2 9. Totals 28 7-9 63.
Total fouls — Westmoor 14, Riordan 20. Fouled out — none. Att. — 1,400.



LONG REACH — Westmoor High center Maurice Pittman (center, dark jersey) has a firm grasp on this rebound, but that doesn't stop Riordan's Elmer Love, who reaches in from behind for a share. Love's rebounding prowess helped kill the Rams in Thursday night's CCS playoff game. Looking on are Riordan's Dennis Andreatta (12), Rams' Ted Scott (face hidden) and Rams' Jerry McNeil (22).

CSM's Rios Second In GGC Three-Mile

College of San Mateo opens its 1974 Golden Gate Conference track season next Friday afternoon with a dual meet at Diablo Valley College.

The Bulldogs, who scratched three teams in Saturday's GGC Relays at Chabot College because of the flu, fared poorly in the non-scoring meet.

Ed Rios and the San Mateo four-mile relay team of Rios, Don Pemberton, Dana Carvey and Ed Barney were the only Bulldogs to take places.

Rios finished second in the three-mile run in 14:56.6. The relay team finished fourth in 19:48.4.

SSF Prep Hurls No Hit Game

Ted Maynard may never see a more perfect day.

The South San Francisco High "second-string" pitcher opened the Warriors' season Monday with a 2-0 no-hitter over Capuchino.

The no-hitter was good, but it wasn't all Maynard did.

He also drove Dan Cummings in with what proved to be the winning run in the first inning, and was the lead man on the double steal that scored the other run.

He struck out 13 and had three assists — 16 of the 21 outs. He walked seven. The Warriors backed him up with errorless ball.

In other nonleague games yesterday San Mateo scored in the bottom of the eighth to top Westmoor 4-3, Carlmont topped Serra 5-2 and Mission beat Serramonte 10-3.

The Carlmont game was the opener in the San Carlos Booster Club Tournament. The Scots got four runs in the third inning, starting with a gift of four walks and a hit batter.

Harry Therkelsen singled with runners on first and second, driving them both home. Serra outfielder Mike Pidd had two hits and drove in a run (he'd also had two hits in Serra's 3-1 win over Burlingame last week).

Child scored 28 points for Atlanta last year.

THE POST'S SPORTS

Le Pacini Giants Lineup

LOCAL NOTES: Reader Juliet Ghafourpour of Pacifica writes to tell us she agreed with our recent column advocating more concentration on the part of instructors on the spiritual concepts of the martial arts.

The real purpose of kung-fu, she notes, is "harmony between mind and body and TAO." (Becoming one with all things). The ultimate is inner peace.

Juliet, who once taught kung-fu to the upper division kids at the Vallemar Alternative Class, notes that she tried internal strength, not external bulging muscles; and that a true kung-fu student never shows force or "shows off," is never an aggressor.

Terra Nova, the North Peninsula League soccer champions, took the title even though El Camino and Westmoor won more game than they did, as they each won four to TN's three. But they also each lost a pair, while the Tigers went undefeated, tying their remaining four league games. Even Oceana and Jefferson won as many games as the Tigers, but lost too many and tied too few.

That half point for a tie game is something football should consider.

A-ROUND OF MISCELLANY:.

Charley Fox said at a recent Giant press conference that his lineup as of now is Bonds, Fuentes, Maddox, Goodson, Mathews, Kingman, Speier and Rader.

If Fox holds to that, he's violating one of baseball's oldest axioms — that you bunch your long ball hitters in the middle of the lineup.

With that batting order, Fox has a total of just 35 homeruns (last year's figures) in the third, fourth and fifth spots, while he has 63 homers batting first and sixth.

Of course, Ed Goodson missed a lot of games and still managed a dozen round trippers, but on the other hand, Dave Kingman missed a lot more games than Goodson and doubled Goodson's output. And Kingman has a much greater homerun potential than Goodson.

Statistics buffs may be interested to know that not only did Cincinnati — normally thought of as a slugging team — lead the majors in number of stolen bases (147), but also led the biggies in percentage of safe steals (72.9), which puts a lie to a common belief that the more often you try, the less your chances become of stealing because of the continuing loss of the element of surprise. Considering how many base runners Johnny Bench throws out attempting to steal, Cincinnati has to have the biggest profit margin in stolen bases in the majors — perhaps of all time.

THE ONLY OTHER teams to go over the 70 per cent mark in stolen bases were Boston (71.7) and San Diego (71), but they didn't steal a lot of bases.

Baltimore, which was only two stolen bases behind Cincinnati, had the next highest steal percentage (69.5), which seems to bear our the theory that a really good base stealing team can go as often as it likes without the "odds" catching up with it.

Other examples; the Giants, second in the NL in stolen bases (112) was fourth in percentage (68.3), while the Dodgers, third in total steals (109) was second in percentage (68.8). St. Louis, fourth in steals (100), did steal a higher percentage of bases than the Giants (68.5), but there is a slight distortion there, because Lou Brock alone stole 70 of those team 100 steals, for a personal 77.8 per cent, which of course, brought the team average up, as well. The A's, second to Baltimore in the AL in total steals (128), were also second in percentage (69.2).

The apparent statistical truism seems to hold up conversely, as well. The Pirates, who stole fewer bases than any team in the majors (23), also had the lowest percentage (43.4). The Mets, second lowest in steals (27) behind the Pirates, had the eighth worst percentage in the league (55.1). Detroit, worst stealing AL team (28), had the second worst AL percentage (48.3), while Cleveland, ninth in total steals had the worst percentage (46.9). The Yanks, second in lowest total (47), had the tenth worst percentage (52.2).

One last stat on stolen bases. The American League had 1719 attempts as against the NL's 1528 but the NL had a higher percentage, 6[illegible]9 to 61.5.

ONE THING ALL of this tells you is that if your catcher isn't throwing out about two out of every three potential base stealers, either he isn't doing his job, or his pitchers aren't helping him at all.

Getting back to more mundane baseball subjects, we can understand Atlanta's not wanting to play Hank Aaron until he gets back home to give his home town fans a chance to see him break and-or tie Babe Ruth's record, but our question is, what if he doesn't to it on that first home stand? Will he sit out the next road trip, and continue to sit out road games until he does break it?

Flash: The major leagues next year will be using cowhide rather than horsehide baseballs. Because of a horsehide shortage, the majors began researching new type covers five years ago and finally settled on cowhide, determining that there is no difference in the performance of the baseball with the cowhide cover.

ROOKIE CENTER Swen Nater, of the San Antonio Spurs, is leading the ABA in two-point field goal percentage (tied with Zelmo Beaty at 53.8), is 22nd in scoring (14.5) and fourth in rebounding (12.4) . . . pretty good stats for a rookie pro who was never more than a second stringer in college. (Of course he was second string to Bill Walton).

Cecil Leads Matmen

Wrestler Tony Cecil of Capuchino High came up with the best local performance in the State High School wrestling meet in Hayward last weekend, winning two of four matches.

He didn't place, but his first loss was to Tyrone Rose of Albany, who had a 59-0 record going into the finale. Rose placed second in the State.

Jim Aquino of Jefferson took his opening match before losing in the second and consolation rounds. Ed Stringer and Irv Levikow, standouts at San Mateo High, were eliminated in the outbracket; Stringer lost 4-2 and Levikow 8-4.

No wrestler from the Central Coast Section won through to a first place finish.

Ski Tips

By Don Cappa

1. The area ski shop is available for any questions or problems, you may have while skiing. Do not hesitate to enlist their help.

2. Sometimes it's a long walk from the parking lot to the base of the ski mountain. Do not plan to walk in your ski boots.

3. The morning line to buy lift tickets sometimes gets quite long. Allow enough time to purchase tickets if you plan on attending ski school.

4. Ski school usually occurs twice a day, 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. Ski session is usually two hours. Tickets are purchased at the ski school building in the resort area.

5. Do not buy boots because they are on sale, buy to fit your foot and your ability; some boots are designed for advanced skiers.

Afternoon of Baroque Music

'Both Feet on the Ground'

The Baroque Music Society will present an afternoon of music titled "With Both Feet On The Ground" featuring strings, bassoon, oboe, recorder, harpsichord and voice at Peiwinkle Art Gallery, 1227 Danmann, Pedro Point, Pacifica. The performance will begin at 2 p.m., March 10.

Robert Richmond Millar, harpsichordist and director of the Baroque Music Society will conduct the ensemble in works by Corelli, Purcell, and Vivaldi. Millar is an instructor of music at Skyline College.

He received his training at California State University at San Francisco. Millar receieived a graduate fellowship in conducting. After graduation, he became assistant conductor of the San Leandro Symphony. Millar has entered various musical competitions and recently played with the Chicago Symphony.

Playing in the ensemble will be George Voitff, recorder and Deila Voitff mezzo soprano. Both have performed in choral and instrumental groups throughout the Bay Area. Other ensemble playrs are oboist David Avery, a student at California State University at San Francisco, bassoonist Donald Homer and harpsichordist Robert Millar.

Jason Paras plays viola da gamba, a stringed instrument used during the Renaissance which is held between the legs rather than on the shoulder as a violin is held. Countertenor Carleton Burelle has toured with the John Biggs Consort.

The title "With Both Feet On The Ground" refers to musical pieces based on ground-bass patterns explained and demonstrated by Millar.

The "Music At The Gallery" series is co-sponsored by Periwinkle Gallery and Sheldon Smith. A donation of $2 for adults and $1 for those under 12 is requested.

Refreshments will be served.

For details concerning the concert call the gallery at 359-5230 between noon and 6 p.m.

Diet Workshop Set at YWCA

The Diet Workshop sponsored by the YWCA of San Mateo County has announced it will hold a free Open House March 11 at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. at the YWCA Center in the United Methodist Church, 560 El Camino Real, San Bruno.

The public is welcome to attend.

This open house will provide an opportunity to see why this method of losing weight has been proved successful. The liberal diet which has been nutritionally balanced by Dr. Morton B. Glenn of New York (medical advisor to the Diet Workshop) was combined with the moral support of group participation to which has been added mild exercises and good tasting recipes.

No more effective, safe method for losing weight yet has been devised, according to Dr. Glenn.

The featured speaker at this open house will be Mrs. Elise Gendar, Northern California area director. She will tell about her lifelong struggle with a weight problem, answer questions and welcome new members.

Ms. Betty LaMont will instruct the morning group, and Ms. Barbara Schori is the instructor for the evening group.

Details may be obtained by calling the YWCA, 588-7366 or 661-7200.

Bad News for Lagunda Salada Teachers

Laguna Salada School District trustees voted Thursday night to notify nine teachers they won't be rehired next year, despite protests by Supt. James Brien who said additional teachers were desperately needed by the district.

He told trustees a special citizen-teacher committee is working on means of lowering the number of students per teacher.

Lucille Foster, director of personnel, told board members that because of declining enrollment, state law obligated the district to get rid of nine teachers for the coming school year.

The teachers involved are all probationary teachers who were hired, or who reported for duty, after the current school term began. The teachers had been warned, when hired, she said, that they may not be rehired this fall.

She assured trustees she was working with other agencies to get jobs for these teachers in other districts. Some may still be rehired by Laguna Salada if attrition turns out higher than expected, she reported.

Brien earlier reported the teacher-ratio committee decided to set, as a first priority goal, an average ratio of 30 students per class, in grades four to six, with a limit of 32 students. About eight more teachers would be needed to achieve the ratio. At present, the average is 33 pupils per class, with five classes running as high as 44 pupils apiece.

There is no shortage of classrooms, Brien told the trustees when he recommended keeping the attendance boundaries in the Park Pacifica area the same for the coming year.

This is the fastest growing part of Pacifica, he said, yet, because of empty classrooms in older parts of the district, children in the new homes are being bused to Crespi School.

Although many new homes are being sold in Park Pacifica and 60 new foundations are being laid, the excess of sixth graders over kindergarteners seems to assure a shrinking enrollment in future years, Brien told the trustees.

Meanwhile, Brien reported that hope for legislative relief for poor school districts has been shattered. Two bills being pushed by the Association of Low-Wealth School Districts do not seem to be getting anywere, he told trustees. One bill would appropriate $27 million to lower class sizes, and the other would increase the amount of state money received, per average daily attendance.

Trustees also voted to eliminate three non-teaching jobs, as of June 30 — a substitute placement clerk, an account clerk and a mail delivery driver.

Brien said that by reassigning duties, it was felt the district office could efficiently perform all its present tasks with fewer workers. The mail delivery driver is a student, hired for one year; the other two jobs may involve dismissals, he told the trustees.

LSSD Lunch Program Questioned

Will seventh and eighth graders patronize the school cafeteria better if they had a snack bar instead of the traditional school lunch?

Laguna Salada cafeteria officials were given the green light Thursday night to go ahead and find out. District trustees, meeting in Portola School in San Bruno, voted to authorize a pilot program for a snack bar at Pacific Heights and Ortega schools.

A parent-school cafeteria committee surveyed students in the two schools, and found out that many students would eat lunch at school if they had a snack bar.

The snack bar will sell pizzas, hot dogs, hamburgers, and burritos for 30 cents apiece; and potato chips, cookies, milk, chocolate milk, fruit drink and fresh fruit for a dime apiece. Hot lunches also will be available.

When trustees questioned the nutritional value of some of the food, the food services supervisor assured them that if a student eats one hot item and two other items, he can get a balanced diet. Otherwise, many will still be getting more than they are now. Many children, she reported, buy the hot meal and fail to eat it.

Juveniles Are Asked Of Thefts

Pacifica police made progress in cleaning up a series of burglaries in Pacifica Manor as they rounded up a second group of alleged juvenile culprits, Friday, according to Police Sgt. Richard Hillman.

Five youths, ages 15 to 17, were questioned last weekend in regard to every unsolved burglary in the north end of Pacifica.

The case reportedly broke when a Pacifica Manor resident heard her doorbell ring. She said she was delayed before she could answer it — and when she opened her front door, there was no one there. A few minutes later, she saw a boy trying to enter her back door — and she called police.

The five youths, according to Sgt. Hillman, admitted to two other burglaries. Police recovered a few of the items that were stolen, but much of the $400 in cash that was taken appeared to be gone. Among items they took were binoculars, a typewriter, and bottles of liquor.

A few days before, a "milk and cookie" burglary gang of younger burglars was rounded up, Hillman alleged. This group took smaller items, loose change, and helped itself to milk and cookies found in the kitchen.

El Camino To Stage 'Teahouse'

"Teahouse of the August Moon" will be presentd by El Camino High School's Performing Arts Department March 8, 9, 10 at 8 p.m. at the school's little theatre.

There is a cast of 50 including 12 small children. Charlie Elurio portrays Sakini, the humorous character that gives the U. S. Army a run for their money.

Peter Mylner portrays the scatter-brained Captain Fisby and Rick Grimm plays the gruff Colonel Purdy. Lotus Blossom is played by Pam Curlee and MacClean by Bill Ekberg.

The play calls for live animals on stage as well as the use of an authentic jeep. The setting is Okinawa.

Navy Fire Control Technician Third Class Mark A. Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard H. Scott of 123 E. Ridge Circle, Pacifica, is a crewmember of the newly commissioned nuclear-powered guided missile frigate USS California homeported at the Naval Station in Norfolk, Va.

The California carries a complement of 540 officers and enlisted men and is equipped with the most advanced sonar and anti-submarine weapons. She has an overall length of 596 feet and can reach speeds in excess of 30 knots.

A 1970 graduate of Napa Senior High School, he joined the Navy in June 1971.

THE MARQUEE

By Barbara Bladen

Rogers Delivers Wit, Wisdom With A Grin

James Whitmore has an uncanny ability to shuffle out onto the Marines Memorial Theater stage, pull a hank of hair down across his forehead, slouch his shoulders and set his face into a wide grin that makes you believe, for all the world, you're looking at and listening to the late Will Rogers. The transition takes only a few seconds and for the rest of the two-hour one-man show you're taken on a weird time trip that covers nearly three-quarters of a century.

Much has been made of the relevancy of Rogers' folk wit, his good natured but still succinct jabs at his contemporary scene as it fits the human condition today. His astute comments on the Teapot Dome scandal so aptly fit the Watergate mess that audiences are filled with laughter. It should, more rightly, be an occasion to despair and sob when you think how little things have changed.

But the show isn't geared to political science students. It's a fond and nostalgic tribute to one of our country's best loved and highly respected humorists. Some might see him as a social critic, but by his own insistence, he never spoke with malice.

Cowboy hat set back on his head, his mouth never relaxed from the wad of gum he works around like chewing tobacco, his hands occupied with a bright blue handkerchief or at twirling a lariat, he rambles on in colloquial slang on a variety of subjects including politics, wars, corsets, ecology, doctors, women, cars and gas.

Not only do 75 per cent of his observations hit home, but Whitmore as Rogers, a man most of the auenne never saw during his film, stage and newspaper days, is vastly entertaining.

"Knockin' the Republican Party in Oklahoma (where he was born and reared) is considered one of the chores, along with sloppin' hogs and plantin' corn," caters to one side of our national sentiments, but "Folks, what are we gonna' do with all these fillin' stations when they become obsolete" strikes a unanimous chord.

Did you know they were discussing artificial insemination way back in the twenties? Since every word that Whitmore speaks is pure, unadulterated Rogers, we have to believe it.

"Did ya read where they can conceive a child without male help? Now I don't know how they'll do that. Or why they'd want to."

As for education, he jokes about his own lack of it but then raps the educational system too, following a popular middle class theory of the time that hard work and moral principles were all you needed to succeed in life.

"If there's anything I regretted all my life, it's that I never took a chance on the fifth grade. There isn't a law school in the country through some weakness in the system that doesn't turn out a senator. And sometimes, if it's low enough, even a president."

He was acquainted with the world's most famous people, presidents, dictators and authors. But he had very few close, personal friends. One was Charles M. Russell, the western artist, to whom he pays affectionate tribute, and a black pony named Dopey.

I like his closing remark, one that seems old-fashioned now but still contains the kernel of a worthwhile motto: "Live your life so you wouldn't be ashamed to sell your family parrot to the town gossip."

American Conservatory Theater is presenting him for the next four weeks. It's a most rewarding two-hour program.

St. Pat's Day Events Planned

During the week of March 11 to 16 the South San Francisco Parks and Recreation Department is sponsoring "St. Pat's Week."

At this time, the recreation leaders of the various parks and playgrounds throughout the city will be conducting an arts and crafts program, low organized games, and special events dealing with St. Patrick and his Irish friends, the Leprechauns.

Boys and girls of elementary school age may participate by contacting their recreation leader on their nearby playground

Recycling of newspapers is enthusiastically endorsed by The Times for a variety of reasons. First, as you have probably read about in the newspaper, there is a current shortage of some paper products, including newsprint, and even though the shortage is not critical, recycling newspapers can help to improve the current situation and prevent future shortages.

Secondly, recycling of newspapers has ecological benefits. It helps conserve natural resources and reduces the amount of waste that has to be disposed of.

Lastly, newspaper collection drives provide excellent fund-raising projects for many organizations. The Times supports these programs and encourages everyone to aid the many youth, church and fraternal organizations in their newspaper collection drives.

Watch The Times each Friday, for the listings on on-going and future newspaper collection drives in San Mateo County. You will find this information in the new Community Bulletin Board column.

Help these organizations help all of us!

RC Councilman to Contend for Coroner's Post

Redwood City councilman William C. Rhodes has declared his candidacy for San Mateo County Coroner-Public Guardian against 21-year incumbent Paul B. Jensen.

The 56 year old Rhodes also is seeking re-election to the city council April 9. The coroner's election is June 4.

"This will be a choice between the old administration and a new one," Rhodes said. "One pledged to serve the public better. It's time for a change in order to bring modern methods of administrating to a large department."

Until a recent back disability, Rhodes was a school teacher for the Redwood City Elementary School District.

Jensen, 66, has been opposed only once since his appointment to the post in 1953.

Rhodes said his immediate concerns are:

Senior citizens who are in institutions and under guardianship of the coroner's office should all be located within the county to assure they receive proper care.

There should be no unnecessary delays in settling of estates.

All property should be carefully cared for and dispersed to heirs as soon as possible.

Investigators should at all times have a good working relationship with law enforcement agencies.

Rhodes also said the department should be divided into four areas with "competent people in charge of each area and coordinated by the coroner."

The city councilman told of how he applied for the position of assistant coroner-public administrator two years ago, but was placed on an eligibility list.

"Now I'm applying to the voters for an administrative job," Rhodes said, "so that I may reorganize and improve the services of that office."

Redwood City attorney David Schricker ruled: "There is no inherent incompatibility of the two offices nor is there an inherent legal objection to running for coroner and holding both offices concurrently."

But Schricker warned that the dual positions "could give rise to a practical inability to perform adequately the functions of one or both of the offices, that that would have to be a practical matter to be determined by the individual."

Rhodes, meanwhile, sees no conflict or inability to perform both tasks, and likens the coroner's position to a day time job that one would have anyway.

The councilman and his wife Margo have two daughters. He said he has experience in the mortuary field.

The County Grand Jury in November of 1972 found there is "serious internal dissension within the office" of coroner. Three former aides were indicted and convicted for various crimes several months later.

The Grand Jury also minimized as "Grossly overstated" criticism of Jensen's operation, but said they did find some incidents of "poor value judgment and inefficient procedural practices."

Jensen himself has declared he would like to see his office divided for more efficiency.

The Grand Jury also said that "some persons who have criticized the county coroner and his office have done so with improper motives and have unfairly misrepresented the facts."

The three aides found guilty of the crimes stemming from the theft of a check from the body of a dead man testified before the Grand Jury before their woes. The aides charged at their trial that they were being "framed" because of their positions, but a jury ruled otherwise.

High Times at Burlingame Meet

Rollicking songs from "Oklahoma" rang through the Burlingame City Council chambers Monday night as Council member Vic Mangini interrupted the board's regular meeting to introduce dance and drama students from Burlingame High School.

Mangini, principal of the school, was also instructed by Mayor R. David Martin to present to the students a proclamation declaring this "Oklahoma Week" in Burlingame.

The musical affair called attention to the six public showings of the school's portrayal of "Oklahoma," Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, of this week and next.

During the 8:30 p.m. break, some 40 teenagers sang the musical's theme song, "Oklahoma," and a second number, "Farmers and Cowmen Should Be Friends."

"This is the first time I've ever enjoyed being here," commented one council regular who hasn't missed a meeting in years.

"We'd like to bring music to you every time," said the group's musical director.

"Come back every week," said Mayor Martin.

Returning to normal business, Councilmen gave Burlingame's approval to contracts which total nearly $3 million, for a sewer outfall line to be constructed to South San Francisco, jointly with Millbrae.

Activation of the contracts awaits Millbrae's approval of the terms. As approved by Burlingame, the Scott Co. of Oakland will receive $1,016,800 to modify existing waste water treatment plants and pumping stations.

Great Western Pipeline Company of San Jose will receive $1,949,709 to build the "outfall line" from Burlingame's treatment plant, up Bayshore to Millbrae's plant, and on northward across San Francisco International Airport property to South San Francisco's plant before eventual delivery to the Bay after purification.

The Council approved temporary easements from the San Francisco International Airport for the sewage line, with terms to be finalized later.

WEATHER AIDE

EDWARDS, Calif. — U.S. Air Force Staff Sergeant Bruce D. Silliman, son of Mrs. Edith B. Silliman of 1620 Huron Ave., San Mateo, has arrived for duty at Edwards AFB, Calif.

Sergeant Silliman, a weather specialist, is assigned to a unit of the Air Weather Service.

Hearing Set for Stockbroker

A preliminary hearing has been set for March 13 for Hillsborough stockbroker Mateo Marco Roman, 49, accused of swindling millions of dollars from San Francisco and Peninsula banks.

U.S. Magistrate Richard Goldsmith set the preliminary hearing date in San Francisco for Roman who was arrested last Friday by FBI agents on a complaint charging him with "making false statements to banks and mail fraud."

Goldsmith also reduced Roman's bail from $2 million to $100,000.

In its affidavit, the FBI contended that Roman would go to a bank for a loan and present stock certificates as collateral. Leaving the stock with the bank, the FBI said, he would take the loan and report the stocks stolen or destroyed.

New stock certificates would be provided by the original issuers and Roman would then use them as collateral in obtaining another loan, the FBI alleged.

According to the FBI, the Hillsborough stockbroker obtained 20 such loans at various banks between July, 1969 and November, 1973. The banks involved were in San Mateo, Redwood City, Palo Alto and San Francisco.

"This alleged swindle involves millions of dollars," said F. Steele Langford, chief of the U.S. Attorney's office criminal division in San Francisco.

Roman had been with Reynolds and Co. in San Mateo for several years and was well-known in local business and social circles.

The accused stockbroker lives across the street from the Randolph Hearst home, center of national attention since the kidnap Feb. 6 of publisher Hearst's daughter, Patricia.

S M Lists Projects

A five-year capital improvement program for San Mateo, including 126 projects and costing an estimated $31.7 million, has been submitted to the City Council.

The plan includes a recommendation that a $4.8 million general obligation bond issue be submitted to voters sometime this fiscal year. It would be for storm drains, sanitary sewers, street lights and other public works.

Of the total, $23.9 million would come from other agencies.

The most significant capital improvement project proposed for the current fiscal year is the $11.5 million expansion of the sewage treatment plant and construction of an interceptor line to Foster City.

Over 90 per cent of the cost would come from federal and state sources and the city would use $1.3 million in previously approved general obligation bonds.

As noted by city officials sometime ago, federal regulations will force the city to levy a sewer service charge as a condition of getting $8,598,000 from the federal government.

City Mgr. John C. Lilly, who prepared the program, has recommended that the council and its advisory bodies hold to a total city appropriation this year of no more than $350,000, the same as set aside last year. To go any higher would require either a commensurate increase in property taxes or cutback in services, Lilly said.

To hold to the limit the council must set priorities reducing the $582,700 total proposed for the first year of the five-year plan.

Among the first year's plan are: Police Department improvements - $6,600 for air conditioning, $9,000 for outdoor lighting; Fire Department - $20,000 for a radio alarm system.

Parks and Recreation - Ryder Park, $15,000; Connie-Concar playground $4,000; Lakeshore Park, $3,000; Patricia Ave. pump station minipark, $4,000; King Field lights, $5,100; Shoreview Park lights $2,000; Central Park, $5,000; Indian Springs Park, $6,000; Parkside, $3,000; and harbor patrol station, $5,000.

Public Works projects - dredging south end of Marina Lagoon, $75,000; Palos Verdes Drive subdrain, $12,000; Hillbarn Court, sanitary sewer line at 44th Place and 43rd Avenue, $39,000; sewer reconstruction, Second Avenue and Quebec Street, $50,000.

Building and Facilities - Combined communications center, $220,000; city hall emergency generator, $20,000; municipal service center, $44,000; Fifth Avenue parking lot maintenance, $35,000.

Conversion Of SC Building?

San Carlos' Planning Commission Monday night approved a restaurant and cocktail lounge in conjunction with plans for converting the abandoned White Front into an indoor-outdoor private sports complex.

The unanimous okay came after considerable debate, Asst. Cith Administrator Richard W. Weiss reported.

Redwood City sportsman Pete Denevi purchased the store site for $2.5 million last month.

He said the complex would include 10 indoor tennis courts, 4 to 6 indoor handball courts, extensive exercise rooms, a snack bar and a pro shop.

Additionally, 12 courts will be constructed outside, as well as a swimming pool.

Denevi has said he would rent courts to the public when private members are not using them.

Weiss said that plans for full conversion are pending a membership drive by Denevi.

In other business, the commission approved plans for a 500,000 gallon water tank in the Lincoln Properties development, one of the prerequisites for construction. Weiss said the new tank will improve service and enhance fire-fighting efforts.

Reading 1st for Parents

What's the most important of academics or attitudinal instruction taught the 10,000 students of the Redwood City Elementary School District?

According to thousands of parents and teacher committees from each of the 17 schools, communication such as reading, writing, spelling and the mechanics of English is the No. 1 of all academics.

And a positive self-concept and self-esteem is the most important in the attitudinal category.

That was the report by Cesar Munoz-Plaza, an administrator, to the district's Board of Education Wednesday night.

Supt. Ralph Wilson said the goals, as tallied after a combined 83 meetings of the 17 committees, would result on-teacher meetings to "suggest strategies fo-lr teaching these goals."

The committees ranked next to communication in importance to academics: math, social studies, science, health, physical education and fine arts.

Ranked after positive self-esteem in attitudinal instruction were respect for heritage and culture of all, understanding and respect for democratic ideas and ideals, and motivation to learn.

The same committees said under citizenship the respect for personal and public property is more important than self-discipline and understanding of the rights and responsibilities of democratic citizenship.

FC Forced to Buy Used Cruisers

Three 1971 model patrol cars that just won't go any farther will be retired by the Foster City Public Safety Department and replaced soon by three used Highway Patrol cruisers.

"They're big and they're gas guzzlers but they're all we can do in an emergency," Chief John J. Norton explained.

Officers will travel to Sacramento Saturday to select the three best from a yard of second-hand Highway Patrol black-and-whites, which average 75,000 miles on their speedometers. The Foster City City Council approved a supplemental appropriation of up to $2200 for their purchase.

These "new" cars will be temporary, hopefully until the end of the fiscal year June 30, Norton said.

He has ordered two new Plymouth Satellites, intermediate-sized cars with "police packages," with money in this year's budget and which are to be delivered within 90 days.

But budget-cutting last summer by the council resulted in the 1971 patrol cars being kept, apparently beyond their capabilities. Now, with 115,000 miles on each of them and maintenance costing $2,000 a year each beyond the cost of gasoline and oil, they just won't do the job.

"I'm asking for three more new cars this fiscal year and I've notified the council in writing," Norton said. "If we don't get them these used cars are going to be with us possibly for the next year."

The three new ones he has requested would be the first of the 1975 line and arrive hopefully by September or October, he said.

Norton was asked at the council meeting this week if patrol motorcycles wouldn't do just as well, but brought gasps from the audience when he replied "Bikes cost as much as a car. You can pay $5,000 per bike, with radios."

The Foster City department presently has ten cars.

SC Crime Drops

San Carlos' major crimes dropped nine per cent last year, and Police Chief Owen K. McGuigan credits his officers and a host of programs, such as burglary prevention.

The statistics were hailed as a "breakthrough year" by McGuigan, especially in light of an 11 per cent increase in 1972 over 1971.

He said the crimes of murder, forcible rape, robbery and aggravated assault dipped 15 percent. While rape and commercial burglary increased slightly.

Property crimes such as burglary, larceny and auto theft as a group were down seven per cent, compared with the national average increase of one to two per cent, McGuigan said.

The chief added that the department's program of home burglary prevention and the school resources officer have had an effect on the crime rate.

Peninsula Ballet Will Premiere Three Works

Peninsula Ballet Theatre will premier three exciting new ballets in their Spring Concert to be held at the College of San Mateo on March 16 at 8:30 p.m. and March 17 at 2:30 p.m.

The first of the new offerings is "Holberg Suite" which was presented to PBT by John Cranko, artistic director and choreographer of the Stuttgart Ballet shortly before his death in 1973. It is one of his finest short works and it was his wish that the premier performance be danced by Rosine Bena and Urs Frey now principal dancers of Peninsula Ballet Theatre who were former members of the Stuttgart Ballet.

Additionally, "Entre Cinq" choreographed by Antony Valdor to music by Faure' will be presented for the first time by PBT. It is a classical work in the impressionist style for five dancers.

The third premier is "Poems of the Sea" choreographed by Dick Ford, former San Mateo resident, to a piano cycle by Ernst Bloch. It is a contemporary work which captures the simplicity of the rhythms of nature in three movements, Sea Gulls, Sea Grass and The Sea.

Also on the program is "Waltz of the Flowers" from Nutcracker which is probably Tchaikovsky's most popular dance composition.

Children at PA Theater

The Palo Alto Children's Theater will present a new musical version of Washington Irving's classic tale, "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" in the Community Theater Auditorium, 1305 Middlefield Road, on March 7 at 4:30 p.m.; March 8 at 7:30 p.m.; March 9 at 3 p.m.; March 12, 14 at 4:30 p.m. and March 16 at 3 p.m.

'Time To Run' Set for S.M.

"Time To Run," a new feature length color release from the Billy Graham Film Ministry studios will play a limited engagement in May in San Mateo. It will be the premiere of the film that presents a realistic portrayal of tensions created in a family where the son's values and ideologies differ from his father's. Gerald H. Dummler, 1378 Marlin Avenue, San Mateo, who is associate pastor of Hope Evangelical Lutheran Church, is Executive Chairman for the Peninsula showings. The exact location will be announced later.

Bus Service Is Dumped

Thanks, but no thanks.

That is the message contained in an order by the State Public Utilities Commission to ServiCar of Foster City.

The local firm has been providing a bus service from the Peninsula to the Daly City BART station but the PUC has told it to cease as of Thursday.

ServiCar has been operating the service in conjunction with the Peninsula Executive Commute Club. Buses pick up riders from Belmont to South San Francisco and ferry them to the BART station.

But Charles Astrue of the PUC contends that this service is not a legitimate charter operation.

Officials of ServiCar have denied that allegation. They state that their operation is legitimate.

ServiCar spokesmen are preparing to file an application with the PUC but it is expected that it will take at least a month — and probably longer — to get that body to reverse its stance.

In the meantime, ServiCar will halt its commuter operation this Thursday.

The service had been instituted as a response to the fuel shortage.

So much for innovation.

Ampex Corp. Forms New Divisions

Ampex Corp. Monday reported the formation of two new divisions, the Memory Products Division and the Data Products Division, to replace the previous Instrumentation and Computer Products divisions.

The changes reflect a new corporate directional alignment, Ampex said.

Arthur H. Hausman, Ampex president and chief executive officer, said, "As a part of the 'new Ampex' the consolidation of the product lines involved in these division changes will make possible a more efficient use of Ampex productive and engineering resources and will afford a stronger marketing potential."

Charles V. Andersen has been named general manager of the new Memory Products Division based in Marina Del Rey, Hausman said.

"The Memory Products Division (MPD) will design, manufacture and market all core memories, as well as other static digital electronic memories," Hausman said.

First Impression of Home Is Important

By IVA NEWMAN

Have you thought about what your guests look at while they are waiting for you to answer the bell? A door-side planting gives that all important first impression that lets you open the door with pride.

Door-side plantings begin with simple but attractive containers preferably made of two-inch thick redwood as these are strong and sturdy and last a long time. Bottoms of the planters should also be of two-inch materials so that rollers can be attached which will allow good air circulation under the containers and let them be moved and turned from time to time so their best side is always out.

We usually suggest a double planting, one on each side of the door, as it provides a better balance to the entrance. When two plants are used the containers and the plants should be as much alike as possible. There is no limit to the type of plant material that can be used but some thought should be given to the amount of time and care certain plants need to keep them neat and attractive.

For our own entrance we prefer evergreen plants that flower as they bring many more compliments than evergreens that don't flower. We chose two standard (tree) azaleas, variety Snowbird. These are in black containers made of two-inch thick redwood, that measure 24 inches square at the top, 18 inches square at the bottom and 16 inches deep. These are stained jet black on the outside and to a depth of six inches down from the top inside. The azaleas were planted in a mixture of two parts screened leaf mold to one part screened top soil. The three holes in the bottom of the container were covered with plastic screening. We have found that this screening keeps sowbugs and slugs from entering the containers. When two-inch wood is used for the bottom we tack a square of this screening over the bottom of the holes too. Care consists of watering, fertilizing and pinching the new growth after flowering to provide more flowering wood the next season.

A pair of camellias would thrive with the same care, except the pinching. However, the camellias would need some bud thinning and the plants might need some pruning to keep them neat, symmetrical and the proper width and height for the container and the background space. Azaleas and camellias are always attractive whether in bloom or not.

Non-Flowering Plants

A very popular plant for entrances is the Podocarpus. Hotels and motels use this plant a lot but it is equally good looking at a home. This plant is practically pest free, evergreen, and seems to take nicely to either sun or light shade. There are several varieties of podocarpus but the one we favor for entrance planting is P. gracilior which is often called Fern Pine. It will need a stake to hold it upright when it is young. These plants usually do not need too much pruning but they should be thinned enough to show some of the handsome gray branch structure. Pinching is usually enough to keep them to a desired size.

The Scotch pine, Black pine and Mugo pine all make interesting entrance plantings. These pines can be kept to any desired size with an annual pinching. Start when the plants are first purchased. Each spring, when the trees send out their candles which is their new growth, pinch off all but about one-quarter inch of each candle. If a growth is too long it can be cut back as long as some needles are left on the growth. Never cut to a bare portion of the branch as it will not regrow needles. It is best to buy these pines a bit small for the containers so clipping and pinching can be done to keep them the right s-lize. These are the trees that the Japanese choose to grow as bonsai.

The dwarf Albertiana spruce (Picea glauca albertiana Conica) makes a very beautiful and satisfactory entrance plant. This spruce has a compact pyramidal growth to about seven feet. It is slow-growing so choose a plant that is about the size you want it to be. It has short, fine needles that are soft to the touch and a bright light green color. It makes a very handsome tub plant that takes very little care other than fertilizer and water to keep it happy and beautiful. Occasionally a stray branch may get a little long but clipping this back is about the only pruning it will ever need. Protect it from strong drying winds and strong reflected sunlight.

For those who like to change their entrance greeting from time to time, wrought iron stands make it easy. We have a 46-inch stand with a copper bowl which we use for everything from azaleas to ferns and annuals. All we have to do is lift one pot out and put in another. We learned early that the bowl needed a hole in the bottom so excess water could drain away as no plant likes to sit with its roots in water.

Fuchsia fans may use their favorite plants at their entrance, provided it is shady enough to keep the plants happy. All they need to do is select a pot that will fit into the container on the stand, pot and grow a favorite variety in the back growing area until it starts coming into bloom then move it up front. Fuchsias bloom over a very long period, given reasonable care, and this use is a good way to interest the passing public in an interesting hobby.

The common petunia and geranium make excellent doorside plantings when grown in pots and pinched so they will grow full and extend over the edge of the pot. White and blue-flowered campanula isophylla makes beautiful hanging baskets that can be put into the container on the stand instead of being hung. If you object to the rather flat top, trying planting four or five pansy plants in the center to add both height and color.

For early spring interest don't forget bulbs. We visited Sunset Magazine offices this past week and found that they had dozens of large pots, all the same size and color, filled with blooming daffodils. These were placed so as to add color to the view from every window and they brought exclamations of delight from the visitors.

The secret of Sunset's potted plantings was the simplicity of the pots. They were all identical, very simple in line and unadorned so they did not compete with the plants for attention, and each container was completely filled with daffodils in full bloom.
